MAY FORCE TRIAL OF CRIPPLE

Youth Also Due to Appear Before Judge to Enter Plea

DISCOVER PLANS FOR OTHER CRIMES

Father of Boy In Slaying to See That Fair Trial Is Secured

(By United Press Leased Wire)
MARSHFIELD, Ore., Oct. 15.—Arthur Covell, astrologer, who has confessed responsibility for one murder and admitted planning a dozen others, may be sentenced for his crime today. He will be carried on a couch into the courtroom of Superior Judge John C. Kendall, and will either be sentenced or will hear the court order that, whether he desires it or not, he accept a trial by jury.

Covell is a helpless cripple as a result of having had his neck broken two years ago in an accident. He now faces possibility of a sentence to death by hanging.

The astrologer is alleged to have hypnotized his nephew, Alton Covell, aged 16, and forced him to carry out the murder of his step-mother, Mrs. Ebba Covell, the boy being told that the stars had directed it.

The younger Covell will also be called into court today and will enter his plea. The elder Covell pleaded guilty Saturday.

Former Mayor George Topping, and Mayor G. R. Wade, of Bandon, near where the Covells resided were two persons slated by Arthur Covell to meet violent deaths, officers revealed today.

Dr. Fred Covell, husband of the slain woman, father of the murderer and brother of the man who planned the crime, has refused to return to the farm home five miles outside Bandon, where the slaying occurred.

Released from any connection himself with the strange death, Dr. Covell is staying with friends at Coquille. He appears dazed by the tragic revelations involving his nearest relatives.

While declaring that he will see that his son is given a fair trial, Dr. Covell has said he wants the law to take its true course and the slayers of his wife to be brought to justice.

The youth's defense, pleaded by Grant Corby, a kindly Coquille attorney will probably be that of mental incompetency. Combined with this, in support of the plea, will be the claim of an occult, hypnotic and astrological influence of the 46-year-old murder-mad uncle over an easily led youth, isolated on a farm as the man's nurse and caretaker.

Lloyd George Thrilled on Visit To Great Northwestern Section

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 15.—America's great Northwest, the land he had been eager to see, surpassed the expectations of Lloyd George, British war premier, he said today.

Welcomed by some of his countrymen, Governor J. A. O. Preus, and delegations of Twin City officials, Lloyd George drove with them through the huge milling district and to the University of Minnesota.

His train arrived at 7:30 a.m. from Winnipeg. After breakfast on the train, Lloyd George appeared. Governor Preus spoke briefly and a Welsh

UNEMPLOYED RAID STORES IN GERMANY

Throngs Rout Police and Storm Market Places in Leipzig as Food Running Low.

BERLIN, Oct. 15.—Unemployed stormed the public markets of Leipzig this morning and marched in great crowds through the city breaking into stores whenever they could get past the cordons of police.

Many stores have bolted and barred their doors in an attempt to protect their dwindling supplies from the plunderers.

All available police have been called out to disperse the crowds by splitting them up into small groups so they can be more easily handled and prevented from engaging in fatal clashes.

STOKES CASE NEGRO CHANGES TESTIMONY

(By United Press Leased Wire)
NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Joseph A. Thornton, negro janitor at the now famous number 13 East 35th street apartment and witness for W. E. D. Stokes, in his suit for divorce against Helen Elwood Stokes, today repudiated testimony he gave in a previous trial of the case.

In answer to a question by Samuel Untermyer, counsel for Mrs. Stokes, who asked the witness if he was ready to swear that the woman he saw entering Edgar T. Wallace's apartment was Mrs. Stokes, he answered emphatically "no."

Thornton denied on re-direct examination by Max D. Steuer, of the Stokes legal staff, that he had been frightened by Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora while he was being questioned in Pecora's office.

Lloyd George was eager for his meeting at noon with Magnus Johnson, and Henrik Shipstead, farmer-labor senators from Minnesota. He wants to meet the men of liberal thought in America, he said.

GAVEL FALLS IN LEGION CONCLAVE

Governor Richardson and Mayor Ralph Greet World War Heroes

(By United Press Leased Wire)
SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15.—The American legion national convention opened at 10:10 a. m. here today for a week's session.

Addresses by Major James Rolph jr., of San Francisco, and Governor Friend W. Richardson of California welcomed the delegates.

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, was the chief speaker of the morning session.

With 900 delegates filling the pit of the civic auditorium, thousands of visiting legionnaires passed in the galleries and still more eager thousands filling the streets outside, National Commander Alvin Owsley responded to addresses of welcome by California and San Francisco officials.

From plans revealed prior to the opening of the convention, the fifth annual conclave promises to be one of the most explosive ever held by the ex-service organization.

Hospitalization of disabled veterans, immigration, adjusted compensation, limitation of aircraft by international agreement, the relation of the rehabilitated veterans to organized labor, prohibition — all these topics are expected to be brought before the convention by resolution.

Despite the opportunities thus presented for the setting off of much dynamite, it seems that the convention this year will be held better in check by the conservative element than was last year's convention in New Orleans. Bombs, pistols and submachine pistols and such are not expected to fly, but big guns will be fired and they will be aimed by steady hands.

Many Entertainment Features.

The great legion parade, reminiscent of the departure of many a unit and division from its native environments will pass down Market street tomorrow. Each night will see smokers, dances, and all sorts of high jinks merrily in full swing. Athletics, both outdoor and indoor will be a big drawing card for weary delegates and visitors.

ENDERLE PRAISES SPEAKER IN LEGION CAUCUS

Charles Kendrick, San Francisco business man and past, national commander of the American Legion who, at a caucus preceding the sessions of the national convention in the bay city, roundly scored the legion's policy on the bonus and what he termed "straddling" of the Ku Klux Klan question.

is one of the most efficient and outspoken members of the legion in California, according to Maurice Enderle, deputy county assessor and prominent in legion affairs in Orange county.

Kendrick, who has been prominently mentioned as a strong possibility for national commander, did not mince words in yesterday's caucus in telling his friends and associates what he thought was wrong with the legion. Total membership of the organization, Kendrick said, is about 625,000, or only 1.2 per cent of the total service men of the country.

Fail to Arouse Interest.

"This indicates," said Kendrick, "that something is radically wrong with the organization, or with the things the legion has been trying to do. It is evident the things the legion has been doing for the past three years do not greatly interest its members."

"In my opinion," said Kendrick, "the legion should never 'straddle' such matters as the Ku Klux Klan. It should come out unequivocally in condemnation of any such movement. I do not favor the legion actively combatting such movements as the Ku Klux Klan, because to do that only tends to dignify them by the strength of our antagonism. This, however, does not prevent a forceful denunciation on the part of the legion, and when this is done, no further action should be taken."

Kendrick favored the following changes:

Abandonment of the American Legion Weekly and the substitution of a live news sheet.

Institution of a plan whereby the national central organization could get in immediate and direct touch with all posts of the legion without going through the state

Some of the notables, including Pinchot and William Jennings Bryan, did not take places in the line calling on the president.

FIRE FATAL TO TRIO AS LOSS $4,000,000

(By United Press Leased Wire)
LOS ANGELES, Oct. 15.—The week-end loss from fire in the Los Angeles district is $4,000,000, according to an unofficial estimate today by the fire prevention bureau of conflagrations in the city and county which cost the lives of three besides the injury of fifty.

Starting Saturday, a forest fire in the Verdugo road section snuffed out two lives, and threatened the destruction of seven suburban towns.

When fire fighting forces controlled the blaze which extended over a 36-hour period, fire broke out in the Ganahl Lumber company yards in the Vernon district. The flames were soon beyond control and an effort was then confined simply in preventing their spread.

This was unsuccessful, as three adjacent concerns were destroyed. They were the Wohlmann Manufacturing company; the Pacific Coast Glass works; and the Calor Brothers planing mill shed. The lumber yard fire alone resulted in a $1,000,000 loss.

The tragedy of the forest fire was enacted on the side of a hill where Joseph McGahan, a plumber, and Clarence Edwards, plumbing inspector, raced unsuccessfully for their lives up a steep hill. The men were on an outing when trapped in a ravine.

One unidentified man who entered the lumber yards with Patrolman O. W. Sampson to battle the blaze at its inception, was pocketed by the flames and apparently did not escape.

Rain Makes Bloodhounds Useless In Hunt for Train Crew Slayers

(By United Press Leased Wire)
ASHLAND, Ore., Oct. 15.—The trail of the Southern Pacific murder bandits grew cold today.

With night rains making further use of bloodhounds impossible authorities admitted the belief that the slayers of four trainmen during a hold-up at Siskiyou mountains and fled, direction unknown.

The warmest clue possessed today was contained in the statements of Special Agent Dan O'Connell, heading the search, that he has learned the place the bandits stole the dynamite used in the crime.

Special Agent Frank Ramirez is en route to Berkeley, California, with a pair of overalls found near the entrance to the tunnel where the hold-up occurred; the pistol one of the men dropped, and the bat-

FIVE RUN RALLY IN EIGHTH INNING WINS CLASH FOR HUGGINS

Nehf Pitches Masterful Ball For Giants Until Fatal Frame When He Weakens and Yanks Score Five Runs

(By United Press Leased Wire)
POLO GROUNDS, New York, Oct. 15.—Game and as stout hearted as any team that ever walked, the surprising New York Yankees jerked victory out of the fire here this afternoon and won the world series when they defeated the New York Giants 6 to 4 in the sixth and deciding game for the championship.

Five runs scored in the eighth inning when the Giant team went to pieces behind wild pitching gave the Yankees a sensational victory when it seemed they would be laid low for the second time by the artistic hurling of Art Nehf, the star Giant southpaw.

Nehf had held the hard hitting Yankees to two hits and one run, a homer by Babe Ruth in the first inning, until he went into the eighth. The Giants' southpaw then went to pieces and Bill Ryan, who succeeded him was just as wild and with terrible pitching the whole Giant team went to pieces.

The Yanks scored five runs on three hits, three passes, and a wild heave by Bill Cunningham into the Yank dugout from deep center field. It was only the game fighting heart of the Yanks that kept them trying hard while Nehf had them making their best efforts look foolish.

When Babe Ruth came to bat in the eighth inning with two runs in and the bases filled, Young Bill Ryan became a hero for a moment by fanning the great Ruth.

Bob Meusel, the lanky outfielder, turned hero then with a single that smacked in two runs and Dugan scored when Cunningham made his terrible wild return of the drive to center field.

When Ruth knocked his third run of the series in the first inning it seemed that the Yanks were to continue the wild batting rampage that upset the Giants in the fourth and fifth games.

Ward singled in the second but then on until the eighth Nehf held the slugger Yanks like Bush leaguers before his masterful pitching. The Giants scored in the first inning when Groh and Frisch singled. Pep Young, the flashy Giant right fielder, then delivered a timely single and Groh crossed the plate.

In the fourth, the Giants scored again when Frank Frisch who had done some heroic fielding to save Nehf, singled and went to second on Young's infield out. Frisch dashed wildly from second on the hit and run and scored when Cunningham came through on his end of the play with a hard single.

In the fifth, the Giants scored again when Big Frank Snyder came out of his slump and knocked Nehf, singled and went to second on Young's infield out. Frisch dashed wildly from second on the hit and run and scored when Cunningham came through on his end of the play with a hard single.

In the fifth, the Giants scored again when Big Frank Snyder came out of his slump and knocked Nehf, singled and went to second on Young's infield out. Frisch dashed wildly from second on the hit and run and scored when Cunningham came through on his end of the play with a hard single.

Frisch's triple and a single by Meusel pushed over the Giants' fourth run in the sixth. All this time the hitting of the Giants was done off Herb Pennock, the spidery left hander of the Yanks.

Pennock lacked control and when he worked himself into a hole on practically every batter, the Giants waited for a good one and then slapped it out.

Threatening weather which made the playing of the game doubtful up to an hour before the time for the battle, kept the crowd down to the lowest of the season. Official figures were not available immediately after the game, but it was estimated the crowd was not more than 25,000. Victory in the sixth game gave the Yanks the championship by a score of 4 to 2 games and made them successful.

RE-MARRIAGE IS BALKED HERE;
MAN JAILED

In connection with the recent arrest of William Henry Seale, 26, Anaheim business man, charged with perjury himself at Riverside in securing a license to marry Alberta Irene Neely, 14, of La
Habra, it was revealed today that Seale and the girl had attempted to secure a license in Santa Ana Saturday.

County Clerk J. M. Backs refused to issue the license when he discovered that the girl was only 14 years old.

Accompanied by the girl's mother, the couple appeared before
Backs and asked for the license.
The mother agreed to give her consent, it was said, but Backs pointed out that the girl was too young to marry, even with her mother's consent, according to the state laws.

"Well, we were married in Riverside about a week ago," Seale remarked, according to Backs.

"Then you must have perjured yourself," Backs replied.
"Oh, I didn't swear to anything.
She said she was 18 and I didn't swear to anything," Seale was said to have declared.

Seale was taken into custody late Saturday, a perjury charge having been filed at Riverside.

TALBERT

TALBERT, Oct. 15.—The main opening of the Ashby Turner subdivision on the Jepson tract was postponed from last Sunday until this time as the building of the roads in the tract is completed.
The roads are being kept flooded
this week preparatory to oiling.
Quite a number visited the tract
Sunday regardless of the postponement.

S. E. Talbert is harvesting this week his forty-acre beet crop on the Sugar company's land three miles south of Talbert.

Dave Fulsom who has one of the three dredger crews employed on the Anaheim sewer line between here and that city crossed the Talbert boulevard Thursday night, working north. Mr. Green has the crew intersecting with Fulsom's contract on the north and he reached the Smeitzer road the same day. Piling which is now on the ground is to be put in through the two river washes in this strip along the right of way.

S. E. Talbert has architects figuring on a new building which will be erected soon on the site of the building burned in Sunday's mysterious fire. Nothing concerning the intentions of the owner of the site of the Mexican store adjoining the Talbert property has been learned as the owner resides in Philadelphia.

Al Vincent had an over-night guest Wednesday his brother, William Vincent, who came up from San Diego, where he located upon his recent arrival from Los Angeles. Another coat of oil is being applied on the streets in the Goode subdivision on the Helm tract this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harper, Mrs.
J. O. Harper, Miss Ruth Harper,
Mr. and Mrs. Harry Harper and small son, Jack, and Mr. and Mrs.
John Shutt Jr. formed a motor party to Laguna Beach Sunday, where they picnicked for the day.
Returning home the evening the entire trip was made through the drenching rain and as a dirt road had been chosen the trip was a skidish one. Harry Harper did not learn of the near burning of his garage in the fire which swept Talbert Sunday afternoon until his return about 7 p. m. The saving of the garage, which was directly in the path of the wind-swept flames, was short of miraculous.

Two new homes are under construction in the Goode subdivision west of town. New residents are moving in continually.

Miss Dednah Gilbert has missed school all the past week as the result of a severe cold.

Mrs. D. C. Gilbert, her father, L.
T. Wells of Huntington Beach,
Mrs. Owy of Huntington Beach and Lloyd Dakon were Wednesday
visitors at Ontario.

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Gilbert and Lloyd Dakon were Saturday visitors in Garden Grove at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Goyings. On Tuesday Mr. Goyings was a dinner guest at the Gilbert home.

Maxine Hoffman visited her aunt, Mrs. Will Shaw, Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Harper were members of a family party which on Monday evening carried out a successful birthday surprise for
Mrs. Harper's sister-in-law, Mrs.
Earl Patterson of Santa Ana. The party took ice cream and a large birthday cake with them and a pleasant evening of music was spent.

Mrs. M. C. Burney has purchased a 2 1/2-acre tract of land from her son, Perry O. Wells. The land lies just north of the Perry Wells home which is Mrs. Burney's former home, she having some years ago owned 100 acres now belonging to Wells and P. A. Isenor. Mrs.
Burney bought the land for a homesite and will begin building operations as soon as the lumber is on the ground which she expects to be there this coming week.

Mrs. Charles Ward was a Los Angeles visitor Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Hoepfner entertained as their guest from Friday until Sunday, Mrs. Hoepfner's mother, Mrs. George K. Scott of South Pasadena.

Lon Wells was taken quite ill
Sunday night but was reported as improving Wednesday. A physician has been in daily attendance.

BOY'S DEATH IN
AUTO TRAGEDY
ACCIDENTAL

The death of Alfred Morales, 17, Anaheim high school athlete, who was fatally crushed under an automobile Saturday night, today was officially declared to have been the result of an "unavoidable accident" by a coroner's jury at Anaheim.

Coroner Charles D. Brown conducted the inquest at 10 a. m. in the undertaking parlors of Backs,
Terry and Campbell, Anaheim.

Young Morales, with two other students, Herbert Frueh and Dan Clemmer, were driving in a small car at the intersection of East and South streets, Anaheim, when the accident took place.

While attempting to pass a car ahead of them, they encountered a strip of road made slippery where water had come from a nearby stand-pipe. The car skidded, young Clemmer lost control of the wheel, and the car careened into the stand-pipe and overturned, falling on the Morales boy. He was so badly crushed that he died soon afterward in a hospital.

Clemmer and Frueh were thrown nearly fifty feet, they said, landing in a clump of bushes which saved them from serious injury.

Morales was a member of a well known Anaheim family. In school he was known as a football star, playing with the Anaheim high school lightweight team.

Wife Would Remove
Spouse From Hospital

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15.—
Through her attorney, John Quinlan, Mrs. Pearl Harris filed a petition in the superior court for a writ permitting her to remove Britt Harris from the Morton hospital. In the petition Mrs. Harris states that the latter is her husband. Dr. A. W. Morton, directing surgeon of the Morton Hospital, stated that he had been served with notice to appear in the superior court and answer to the petition. He also stated that he was perfectly willing for Harris to leave the hospital if he wishes to,
but that the patient, who is 60 years old, has not sufficient strength left up in bed and should continue to receive treatment for some time. He said the patient is suffering with pernicious anemia.

Mesans Lose Home
In Oil Stove Blaze

Bert F. Simons and family of Costa Mesa were preparing to establish a temporary home at Simon's apple market, on Newport boulevard, following destruction of the family home Saturday afternoon by fire.

The residence was located on Santa Ana avenue and Twenty-first street. The fire, discovered at 1 p. m., consumed both the house and contents. It is believed the fire originated from an oil stove in use at the home. It is understood that Simons carried no insurance.

WOULD RELEASE FATAL CRASH CAR DRIVER

In view of a coroner's jury verdict, which failed to determine that A. C. McKenzie was under the influence of liquor when his car crashed into a wagon loaded with oil pipe near Huntington Beach last Friday, resulting in the death of his brother, J. H. McKenzie, Chief Deputy District Attorney C. N. Mozley today stated that a felony charge against the former probably would be dismissed.

C. McKenzie, arrested after the fatal accident, was charged with driving an automobile while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. His car had crashed into the rear of the wagon, from which a piece of pipe projected, penetrating the windshield of the car and inflicting fatal injuries to J. H. McKenzie, who sat beside his brother.

At the inquest, conducted by Coroner Charles D. Brown in the Smith and Tuthill funeral parlors here Saturday afternoon, Mrs. J. H. McKenzie, the widow, who had been in the car at the time of the collision, testified that during the trip from their home in Ontario to Huntington Beach she knew that her brother-in-law had not been drinking, nor had showed signs of intoxication.

A Santa Ana physician who examined McKenzie an hour and a half after the wreck testified that in his opinion McKenzie was intoxicated. Similar belief was expressed by Deputy Sheriff Herman Zazel, who arrested McKenzie.

Considering the conflict in testimony and the possibility that in the lapse of time between the wreck and his arrest, McKenzie might have secured the liquor, if he was intoxicated when arrested, the jury decided in its verdict that "we are unable to determine from the evidence whether the driver, A. C. McKenzie, was intoxicated."

The verdict was signed by L. M. Howell, as foreman, H. H. Briscoe, R. J. Haines, A. J. Boyd, Frank Lamar and W. R. George. Mozley was present at the inquest. He stated that there seemed to be insufficient proof to proceed with prosecution of McKenzie.

Wife Accuses Actor in Divorce Action

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15.—"Short-haired women and long-haired men, posing as social uplifters, some of them sincere and some of them otherwise," were blamed by Superior Court Judge Leran as responsible for the attack by a burglar on Mrs. McLeran in her home at 2427 Fulton street.

"If some of these half-baked reformers would attend to their own business and pay less attention to opening the jail doors for every curly-haired crook who takes their fancy, San Francisco would be far freer from such attacks as was made on Mrs. McLeran," McLeran said.

City Suffering Claim
"San Francisco is suffering from too much 'reformism.' The town is cluttered up with a lot of short-haired women and long-haired beings in trousers, who are making it a hobby to have probation granted to thieves, crooks and even murderers."

"I hold such to be directly responsible for the brutal beating of my wife by a burglar and the theft of her jewelry. Instead of keeping the jail doors locked on crooks, these would-be reformers, some of them sincere, but most of them mere busybodies, do their best to have known crooks placed on probation so that they may continue to prey on law-abiding citizens."

Deplores "Long Hairs"
"It's about time these short-haired and long-haired ceased their efforts to obtain freedom for thugs and murderers who have been convicted of felonies. Probation is very easy to obtain and the crooks know it, especially if the crook is young and good-looking on the outside."

"It's high time that more drastic punishment be meted out to convicted felons."

Rain Benefit to Hawkinsville Mines

HAWKINSVILLE, Oct. 15.—Mining activity here has picked up considerably in the past two weeks, the heavy rains recently filling the ditches and making water available for sluicing in Red Gulch. Gordon & Quinn, it is announced, will install a mill on their Rainbow group property west of here and begin active operations the last of the month.

More prospectors than have been seen here in many years have been combing the mountains for pockets and placer locations and several notable discoveries have been made. The location of the Rainbow lode and the discovery of rich ore at the Spring mine, bonded to T. W. Billings, have created new interest in the Hawkinsville field, which, in the early days was noted throughout the world for its rich production.

Hero Declares War Is "Bunk" When He Gets Belated Medal

AKRON, O., Oct. 15.—War is the bunk!

Take that in paraphrased form from Lieutenant Dwight H. Schaffner here, who had the stuff in him from which heroes are made.

Recognizing that fact, a tardy government has just conferred upon the young fighter its highest award.

The congressional medal of honor hung from Schaffner's breast is intended as compensation for his courageous conduct during the late war, when in command of a platoon of Company K, 306th Infantry, 77th division, he distinguished himself under fire.

"The pomp and glory of war is a fatal delusion," he says. "Seen at close range, in the mud of the trenches, its hideous reality shatters the dreams of the soldier who thinks of the battlefield as a field of honor."

"The same moon which our sweethearts at home would look up to and ask to shine on their lovers in France would many times cost the soldiers their lives."

"Damn that moon," the dough-boy would exclaim, as its bright beams exposed him to the enemy's fire in No Man's Land."

Schaffner's bride of a few weeks witnessed her husband's decoration made a public event here.

He is an attorney, and expresses the opinion that all ex-service men are in favor of the League of Nations or some other world association which will guarantee lasting peace.

FRAUD CHARGES ARE DENIED BY EX-OFFICIAL

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15.—In a sweeping denial of all charges against him, Frederick N. Littleton, on trial before Federal Judge Partridge, in his own behalf was on the witness stand nearly four hours.

Littleton, who is charged in six indictments with having admitted to fraudulent citizenship a large number of Greek, Italian and German aliens, under the so-called seamen's and the soldiers' acts, spent nearly all of his time explaining procedure in naturalization cases.

On direct examination, Littleton said that, shortly after M. R. Bevinfield succeeded George H. Crutcher as chief examiner in this district, Bevinfield made an unauthorized destruction of records of the office.

"When I called his attention to the fact that he was destroying records without authority from Washington, Bevinfield told me that when he got ready to rid the office of such documents he did so, and did not care to await orders from Washington," said the witness.

Littleton, when asked if he had solicited or received fees from applicants for citizenship, denied that he ever received a cent. He was offered a first month's salary from one Henry Salvi, he said, if he would assist the latter to obtain a "stool pigeon" job with the prohibition department. Salvi did not get the job, so no further offers were made, he said.

Judge Partridge ordered the issuance of a subpoena calling upon the department of justice to produce stubs of expense accounts turned in by Littleton.

DRUMM SWORN IN AS THIRD JUDGE HERE

Frank C. Drumm, former Orange attorney who was recently appointed to the bench by Governor Friend W. Richardson, was today sworn in as a judge of the superior court of Orange county.

The oath was administered by County Clerk J. M. Backs in the clerk's office. Superior Judges R. J. Williams and Z. B. West promptly congratulated their new colleague and promised to give him "plenty of hard work" in relieving the long-standing congestion of court calendars.

Judge Drumm will preside in department 3 of the court, created by the last state legislature. His first case is scheduled for trial tomorrow. Court sessions will be held temporarily in the chamber of the board of supervisors.

Church of the Messiah To Launch New Choir

A note of originality has been struck by Leon Eckles, prominent local baritone and teacher of sight-singing and voice training, in his plan to develop a church choir at the Church of the Messiah.

Sixteen carefully selected voices will form the new organization, each member of which will be entirely capable of carrying solo work. Furthermore the selection will be so made that in addition to a well-balanced ensemble, there will be a double male quartette and a double quartette of women's voices. Only serious and ambitious singers are considered for the choir, which promises a consistent growth.

Since the organization is to be treated in a purely professional manner, regular attendance and continuous work will be expected from each member. Remuneration will come in the form of a liberal credit on private voice lessons with Mr. Eckles, including a course in sight-singing free of charge. In addition each member will be presented before the public in inviolable training.

While Mr. Eckles has already chosen most of the members of the organization, it was stated today that a few vacancies remain and vocalists who can fill the requirements may arrange for a vocal trial by telephoning the originator of the plan.

It is expected that the choir will be ready to launch by December 1 and Mr. Eckles is receiving the enthusiastic aid of the church in all details of the plan. While membership will be limited to the original sixteen, it is planned to receive members on a waiting list so that singers may be constantly available. The choir will be the usual vested one of the Episcopal church.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 15.—The remarkable demand for the new Dominion of Canada refunding loan in the two first business days which elapsed between the announcement of the issue by the minister of finance and its offering to the public and aroused comment throughout the country. Of the total objective of $12,000,000, considerably over $72,000,000 was taken at the week-end, leaving somewhat under $100,000,000 available for the public.

Know Your Costs

Costs are the shibboleth of the present day merchant. Few know how to get around them. Many have a record of labor costs, machinery costs, and are possibly able to determine with a fair degree of accuracy just what their factory cost is, and in some cases, they even add transportation costs. When they have obtained these costs, they in some way figure: "Well, the overhead, salaries, bad debts and selling costs will have to come out of profits." But serious consideration is seldom given to learning accurately what each one of these costs will be, and how much profit should be allowed to provide a safe margin. The first basis for merchandising—and this applies to marketing by mail as well as to any other method of merchandising—is an accurate knowledge of costs of doing business. These can be safely computed only when all elements of costs are provided for, and a margin of profit established over and above the cost.—Forbes Magazine.

PLACE APPLES ON SALE AT LOW RATE

Many tons of choice windfall apples are available at Costa Mesa at prices ranging from 1 cent to 2½ cents a pound, according to announcement made today by D. J. Dodge, president of the Costa Mesa Apple Growers' association.

Dodge said that the fruit was in fine condition, and that growers were now gathering the windfalls in anticipation of a big demand at the low prices. He pointed out that the association was not shipping windfalls and that for this reason they were being offered at the very low prices quoted.

CANADA EXPORTS AUTOS

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 15.—Canada is taking a leading place in the automobile industry, the number of cars exported during the year ending August being 61,543, or within 40 per cent of the total of such exports by the United States during its last fiscal year. It is only when the disparity of population is taken into account that this is realized. During the year the value of automobiles and parts exported was $34,621,000, as compared with $16,293,000 for same period last year. The British empire took the largest proportion of these, but 50 countries appear in the list of foreign purchasers.

2 SHOT AS GIRL SHUNS DANCE; SEEK FUGITIVE

An affront to the ride of Delorez Erreras precipitated a shooting affray that placed the authorities on Erreras' trail and left two of his victims wounded in a Buena Park hospital, it was revealed here today, in the wake of a Mexican dance at that place.

Ventura Magallanez, 24, was in a serious condition with a pistol shot through the neck. Joe Guellen, 20, was wounded in the head, but not seriously, the bullet having glanced.

The shooting took place early Sunday morning, it was said. Erreras had asked a Mexican maid to dance with him and had been refused. Immediately afterward Guellen walked gaily away with the girl, it was learned.

Caramba! The hot-headed Erreras pulled forth his pistol and fired, felling Guellen at the first shot, it was alleged by the authorities. Magallanez rushed forward to quell the affray and was met with a bullet that penetrated his neck, causing a wound that may prove fatal.

Word of the shooting was sent to Sheriff San Jernigan's office and officers immediately started in pursuit of the fleeing Erreras. Chief Criminal Deputy Sheriff Ed McClellan, accompanied by Deputies Herman Zabel and John Murrillo followed the fugitive and were hot on his trail, they said, when he reached the Los Angeles Mexican quarter, where trace of him was lost.

BUILDING SHOWS GAIN

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 15.—During August construction contracts awarded in Canada amounted to $27,488,700, compared with $25,187,500 a year ago. The value of contemplated new work reported during August amounted to $32,374,900. Construction contracts awarded during the first eight months of 1923 amounted to $223,654,400, compared with $184,333,700 during the corresponding period of last year. MODISTE WINS SUIT AGAINST SHOW GIRL

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15.—"Now and Then" was the title of a musical show once produced by Kolb and Dill, San Francisco's favorite purveyors of bright entertainment for "tired business men." "Now and Then" also describes the troubles of a big pink hat, which at the time of "Then" was ordered for May Cloy, the leading lady of the Kolb and Dill company and wife of Charles Kolb. "Now" represents a judgment obtained in Justice of the Peace Frank Dunn's court through her attorneys, Charles Brennan and Harold Faulkner, by Edith Sweeney, modiste, professionally known as Edith L. Igoo, for the sum of $39.50, reputed value of the said pink hat.

According to the testimony given by Mrs. Sweeney, she had been making costumes and hats for the Kolb and Dill company for years, and the troubles over the pink hat broke that business friendship into many pieces. She said that Kolb took one look at the pink hat and figuratively gave it one of those kicks that he registers nightly on Max Dill. On the other hand, Miss Cloy said it was a "dream of a hat" and told Mrs. Sweeney she would pay for it. But in the course of "Now and Then" the payment was never made, hence the appeal to the court.

Past Presidents

An unusually pleasant occasion resulted when the Past Presidents' club of Sarah A. Rounds Tent No. 10, Daughters of Veterans met recently with Mrs. Louane Leach at her home, 163 Pine street, Tustin, for a luncheon and social afternoon.

Gaily-tinted dahlias and great yellow chrysanthemums formed the floral background for weird black cats and pumpkin jack-o'-lanterns which bespoke the approaching Halloween season. Halloween motifs also adorned the table where a delectable luncheon was served by the hostess.

In the afternoon, a spirit of sociability reigned and the members chatted merrily as they busied themselves with needlework.

Mrs. May Thomas asked the club to meet with her at her West First street home at the November session when another pleasant luncheon will be held.

Enjoying the session with Mrs. Leach, president of the Little club, were Mesdames Nellie Parker, Emma Chapman, Lenore Ward, Eva Bell, May Thomas, Caroline Adams, Elizabeth Adams, Esther Gardner and Flora Phillips.

In a recent exhibition of patented articles in London, a curious exhibit was a special type of footgear for cultivating Charlie Chaplin's famous walk.

Young Lad Celebrates
Eleventh Birthday
With Friends

A very much surprised and delighted youth was young Cecil Siabach who on Saturday afternoon returned from an errand upon which he had been despatched by his mother, Mrs. L. W. Siabach, of 418 West First street, to find the house filled with a merry group of his friends, gathered for his eleventh birthday.

During his brief absence Mrs. Siabach had managed to have the rooms adorned with weird witches, fierce looking black cats and other Halloween appointments which looked from among the clusters of marigolds and beautiful Golden West dahlias which were used in profusion.

Appropriate to the season were the amusing apple races, fortune telling and drawing contests with a witch as model, which offered the afternoon's entertainment. In the drawing contest clever first prizes went to Nell Marie Hinton and Helen Stein while consolation gifts were bestowed on Charles Crumley and Elden Geissel.

An exciting treasure hunt took the guests all around the block, over to the tennis courts of the high school and finally ended in the dining-room of the Siabach home where a table gay with Halloween symbols and favors, offered its treasures to the young people who gathered around to enjoy ice cream, cake, candies and nuts to say nothing of the big pink and white birthday cake itself, with eleven pink candles in two rosebud holders.

Many pretty gifts were showered on Cecil by his friends who included Edith Tedford, Reta Martin, Dora Tedford, Shirley Groomer, Helen Siabach, Etta Jackson, Helen Stein, Dorothy Preble, Helen Duckam, Hazel Strotman, Nell Marie Hinton, Kathryn Chandler, Valerie Strotman, Holmes Dunham, Lester Siabach of Anaheim, Arthur Stein, Oscar Patmore, Donald Crumley, Ronald Strotman, Charles Crumley, Raymond Todd, Roland Duckam, Horace Berry and Elden Geissel.

Motor Northward
For Week-end Visit

Leaving this city Thursday, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene G. Huff spent an enjoyable week-end in Santa Barbara and vicinity, stopping at Santicoy near Ventura for a visit with Mrs. Mabel Kealey Rugg, well-known musician of that section, at her ranch home.

Friday afternoon they motored on to Ventura where they were guests of Mrs. Huff's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Emmet Gammell. Among the pleasant events of their visit was a smart little dinner with which Mrs. Margaret Dobbins entertained Saturday night and an old-time barbecue on Sunday when Mr. Gammell proved his ability as a chef and the food, cooked in a specially prepared barbecue pit which the host maintains on his place, was enjoyed beneath a spacious grape arbor.

Mr. and Mrs. Huff returned last night, Mrs. Huff stopping in Pasadena to superintend the completion of repairs of the property they recently purchased there.

The arrival of Miss Marie Steiner from San Luis Obispo to spend the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. William S. Kellogg of 414 West Chestnut street seemed logical reason for Robert Day, one of the summer's brides, and her mother, Mrs. H. G. Copeland to accept Mrs. Kellogg's invitation on Saturday that the three former college mates at the University of California, southern branch, might reminisce happily of girlhood days.

The attractive home of Mrs. Kellogg was rendered exceedingly festive in honor of the event, with black cat heads peeping at the guests from amid masses of golden rods.

The arrival of Mrs. Day (formerly Miss Edna Copeland) and Mrs. Copeland was followed by that of Miss Steiner from her San Luis Obispo home. After greetings were spoken, Miss Steiner returned to the living-room at the head of a small procession of friends who had arrived much earlier and were seated by the hostess until Mrs. Day's arrival. It took several minutes for the latter to realize that she was the guest rather than the visitor from the southland.

The hallowe'en motif used by Mrs. Kellogg in the living room was accentuated in the dining-room as well where tall yellow candles gleamed on the buffet, flanking an attractive autumnal arrangement of fruits.

A huge jack-o'-lantern centered the table while from the electrolite fluttered a retinue of ghosts, goblins, bats, and all the members of their weird family. A menu of cream of celery soup, perfection salad in pumpkin form, eggs vermicelli in patty shells, escalloped potatoes, pumpkin pie sounded an appropriate color note, while orange and green mints filled the wee witches' caldrons which were the nut cups.

Yellow ribbons leading from each plate to the pumpkin centerpiece, brought forth dainty tea towels all ready for hemming and embroidery and a little verse which said:

"With happy fingers nimble,
Needle, thread and thimble,
We will make these in our glee
For our dearest honoree."

At the afternoon's close, the completed towels were presented to Mrs. Day together with a handsome silver sugar and cream set, the gift of the assembled guests and Mrs. Kellogg's own wedding gift to her, a silver sandwich tray.

Mrs. Kellogg, youthful matron of a year, was formerly Miss Iva Lou Weber, her appointment of her husband, William S. Kellogg as principal of the Frances Willard junior high school, brought the young people back from Stockton to the bride's girlhood home to the satisfaction of a host of friends.

The younger members of the little group enjoying Saturday's luncheon were all former Santa junior college or Southern Branch friends and included Miss Marie Steiner of San Luis Obispo, Mrs. Andrew Reite and her baby daughter of Montebello, Miss Martha Ehlen of Fullerton, Mrs. Robert Day, Miss Frances Stockebrand, Miss Freda Schroeder and the hostess, Mrs. Kellogg together with Mrs. Iva M. Weber and Mrs. H. G. Copeland.

PAPER EXPORTS HEAVY

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 15.—August export trade returns show that the pulp and paper industry continues its triumphant march, the value of exports, including pulp wood, having been $15,086,041, an increase of 27 per cent over figures for the same month last year. How strong is to be seen that the value of shipments to the United States during the past year increased by 26 per cent, or from $9,875,038 to $13,420,038. Export of pulpwood are keeping up strongly, 163,411 cords having gone to the United States during August, or 43,400 more than during the same month last year. Twenty million dollars' worth of pulpwood went to the republic during the five months ending August, or nearly $8,000,000 more than during the same period two years ago.

Beautiful Bridges Hall of Pomona College Group
Offers Setting For McFadden-Worden Bridal Event

Distinctly collegiate in its setting and general plan was the beautiful wedding on Saturday afternoon in which Miss Flora McFadden, charming young daughter of one of Santa Ana's distinguished families, plighted her troth to William Worden of Hollywood at the sunset hour.

Sacred to the brides of Pomona, stately Bridges hall on the college campus, offered setting for the ceremony and, adorned with great baskets of vivid pink chrysanthemums, harbored nearly two hundred guests summoned for the event.

With Raymond Moremen, assistant to President Blaisdell, presiding at the organ, a beautiful recital preliminary to the wedding offered among other numbers, Mendelssohn's Spring Song and vocal numbers by Miss Holly Lash of this city. Miss Lash sang Lenson's "Love Song" and Cadman's "At Dawning" after which the ringing strains of Lohengrin introduced the wedding party.

Miss McFadden, entering on the arm of her brother, Edwin T. McFadden, was by him given in marriage during the impressive ceremony read by the Rev. George Ernest Raitt of South Pasadena, a cousin of the bride. Lovely in white georgette over satin with Princess lace adornment, Miss McFadden wore a tulle veil full court length arranged in cap effect banded with orange blossoms. Her flowers were bride roses showered with lilies of the valley.

She was attended by Miss Verdelle Breckinridge as honor maid, followed in sea-green taffeta, with flower garble of roses and carrying deep pink Premier roses tied with an orchid bow. The orchid note was sounded in the costumes of the bridesmaids, Miss Joy Wilcox wearing a little long waisted frock of blue taffeta, lace trimmed and Miss Bess Crant in a gown of similar style but of rose taffeta. They carried light pink butterfly roses, one cluster tied with green tulle, the other with pink.

Preceding the bride was dainty little Lucille Crant in fairylike white ruffles, carrying an orchid basket of butterfly and bride roses in shower effect, surmounted by pink bows.

Miles Allen of Claremont served Mr. Worden as best man while the two groomsmen were Lamont McFadden whose marriage to Miss Maydelle Jordan was one of the summer's leading social events, and Gerald Sanford of Claremont. To the joyous strains of Men-

Capistrano Y. L. I.

Capistrano chapter Y. L. I. has completed plans for a lively affair on the night of October 30 when a Halloween oyster supper will be presented at K. C. hall with a cordial invitation issued to everyone to join in making the evening a success.

At 5:30 p. m. will be served a delectable menu centered around escalloped oysters and offering potatoes Lyonnaise, hot biscuits and coffee. After 8 o'clock, patrons will be served with oyster soup, cold slaw, hot biscuits, coffee and pie and the evening will be devoted to dancing with admission by ticket alone. Miss Zola Povelson, Y. L. I. president, heads the dance committee while Mrs. Henry Cochems is chairman of the supper committee.

Plans were completed at the latest chapter session when the Armistice day float was also a subject for discussion. The Mission at San Juan Capistrano will be reproduced in miniature for the chapter's entry in the Orange celebration parade, Father St. John O'Sullivan of the Mission designing the float.

Initiation of half a dozen new members brought the chapter membership up to 111.

News from Orange County

NEWPORT BEACH SEES SERPENT DAILY NOW

NEWPORT BEACH, Oct. 15.—Nothing succeeds like success and Judge Hall's sea serpent at the bottom of the fathomless canyon off the end of the Newport pier, stands a fine chance of winning first prize in any California climate club that has ever been formed.

This serpent is still lurking off Newport's shore, ready to devour all who might invoke its, or her, displeasure.

Is Feminine Persuasion.
For the sea monster must be of the feminine persuasion, else why would the judge write so persistently and fluently about her? The one here has a feather in her cap, two humps to indicate curvature of the spine and a spiked tail to show that money isn't everything.

These pesky serpents have been lurking around these waters since Pa Bell discovered one with a spy glass several months ago, and last week the same beefy animal hove into view a mile from the pier, flitted her fin at Don Moore, winked at the judge and Clem Hemstreet and ruffled her feathers at Miss Klatt as she dived for the pennies the mackerel fishermen on the pier tossed her.

Judge Takes Hope.
"Ha," chuckled the judge as he waved his wooden cane, "now watch me prove that a real sea horse cavorts around this beach. I'll show these skeptical 'babies' that I know what I'm talking about and that I can tell a serpent from a dead man's chest and a bottle of rum along with the best of 'em."

Saying which, his judgship seized his trusty new Rem and told how, at a distance of 5280 feet with his clear spectacled eye, he saw a set of dorsal horns 200 feet long, a pair of prongs or pliers that glinted like white bootleg and fierce eyes hunting for an empty soup plate. Her hair was uncombed, and unbraided, as though it were early morning, while all her hairpins were hanging either on her horns or caught in her mouth.

There is nothing small about the judge when he is writing a tale of the sea and he is now seriously considering having the serpent hauled to shore, stuffed and put in a museum at ten cents a look, so that ever after the boys up and down the beach can't accuse him of making fish glue out of a perfectly harmless, grinning ocean masta-don.

Rough Pine Box is Coffin for Anaheim's Boss Chinaman But His Body will Go Back "Home"

ANAHEIM, Oct. 15.—Thirty-five years ago Ah Kim was monarch of all he surveyed in Anaheim Chinatown. It was to Ah Kim that the grape pickers in the local winery appealed when difficulties arose in their colony. Three hundred of them bowed low before the shrine of Ah Kim and said "tis well" when his orders were issued.

That was thirty-five years ago. Today, Ah Kim is dead, and before long his body will start on the long journey to the land of his fathers. In a rough pine box supplied by the county, Ah Kim's body was buried in the county lot in the Anaheim cemetery.

Ah Kim came to Anaheim when "no mother colony was only a few homes on either side of a dirt road. He erected a thatched hut on a lane which now is Charters street. There he held his court and conferred with the white man when trouble was brewing among the grape pickers. He never failed to supply the demand for laborers when the rancher made his appeal. In some mysterious manner, Chinese grape pickers appeared when the season was on and vanished at its close. It was said that Ah Kim kept a secret—how sailing vessels could bring the workers from China and then take them back again without the knowledge of the authorities.

Ah Kim's body will not remain long in the Potter's Field grave in the Anaheim cemetery, for, as it was lowered into the grave, three of his countrymen stood by and muttered a promise that, according to custom, Ah Kim's body will be taken back to the land whence came the grape pickers when he held court in his thatched hut on Charters street.

JUNIOR SCOUTS AT H. B. ARE POPULAR

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Oct. 15.—Twenty-five new members entered the ranks of the Junior Scouts here at the second meeting at the grammar school Thursday.

The Junior Scout troop was formed two weeks ago by Scoutmaster C. E. Morris with nearly sixty charter members. The smaller boys have taken to the movement "like ducks to water" and the new members admitted Thursday night brought up the total to over eighty.

It is the purpose of the Junior Scouts to learn a few of the rudiments of the Scout life and prepare them in a greater sense for becoming a first class Scout. They are to be taught the principles of life saving, first aid, camping and other of the more simple duties of the Boy Scouts.

It is expected that the troop will grow to well over 100 members in the near future.

INJURED MAN GOES TO HIS L. A. HOME

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Oct. 15.—Frank Walters, fifty-seven years of age, who was thrown over the handlebars of his motorcycle when it struck an Edison company truck at the corner of Nineteenth and Walnut streets, recently returned to his home at 199 West Thirty-seventh street, Los Angeles.

The Edison truck was driven by B. O. Farney. A miscalculation as to the speed of the vehicles was given as the reason for the motorcycle hitting the truck. Mr. Walters was severely shaken and bruised, but was not injured seriously.

EDISON CO. TO OPEN BRANCH FOR BEACH

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Oct. 15.—With the local Edison company making preparations to move into their new quarters about the first of the year, when a new district will be formed, composing the towns of Huntington Beach, Seal Beach, Sunset Beach, Newport Beach and Wintersburg, Smeltzer, Talbert and other cities, with the district office located at 309 Main street, the contractor selected to construct the new buildings is rapidly carrying on his work.

The new building is estimated to cost about $15,000 and will be located next to the Army and Navy store in the block which is fast building up near the city hall. A rough estimate of the accounts places the new ones to be opened here with the opening of the new district at about 5000. It is said that about 17,000 accounts are kept in Santa Ana.

Work is to commence today on the new $15,000 Edison company building by the Ridenour Brothers, contractors. The building is to be a one-story brick building containing office rooms and rooms for all departments. At the present time the architects are busy working out a fine front design for the building.

The putting into effect of the new district on January 1, 1924, will bring about twenty-five men and their families to this city to make their permanent home, it is said.

Plans are now being made by the local Scouts to participate in the annual Scout track and field meet to be held in March. The local Scouts landed second place in the county last year and are determined to take the first honors this season.

FACTS ON S. A. ARE ASKED IN ARGENTINE

The fame of Santa Ana has spread to Buenos Aires. Like-wise to Bundeul, Wis. C. S. Browne, general agent of the Union Pacific railroad here, today received inquiries from these widely separated points for information of a practical nature concerning Santa Ana and Orange county.

"Please send me all the information you have concerning Santa Ana," said Francis Enders, writing from Buenos Aires. "I would also like information concerning traveling conditions."

Writing from Bundeul, Wis., Raymond Haefel requested Browne to send all available literature immediately. "This indicates," said Browne, "that the people of the East, as well as those in foreign countries, are deeply interested in Orange county and the literature we send out, and it shows the necessity for the closest co-operation in matters of this kind. By sending out the right kind of an appeal, we can reach and possibly induce many to settle in and near Santa Ana."

Browne is co-operating with the Chamber of Commerce and county officials in broadcasting literature that will prove valuable to those interested in this section of California.

FIRST JR. HIGH MUSICAL DUE WEDNESDAY

Depicting the dress, manners and songs of the American colonial period, the Civil war days, and the early 70s of the Quakers, the Laura Werno women's quartette will appear at the junior high school auditorium on North Main street, at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening, in the first of a series of ten entertainments given jointly by the two junior high schools under the direction of Will F. Kellogg and H. G. Nelson, principals.

Instrumental solos and cello and violin solos, as well as "Smilin' Through," a clever sketch given by Miss Laura Werno, will feature the program. Among the vocal numbers is "The Doll Song," taken from the "Tales of Hoffmann."

The skill with which this varied program is rendered, and the poise and personality of the members of the quartette are highly praised by those who have heard them.

Repeaters in the way Kellogg, principal of the Francis E. Willard school, termed the popular lyceum artists. "We have endeavored to secure the best material possible. The program given by the Werno quartette is varied enough and the appeal is strong enough to satisfy the most critical audience."

Six lyceum numbers are scheduled on the joint entertainments program of the two junior high schools, while the schools, themselves, will furnish four of the numbers. Kellogg said that the programs given by the schools would mostly consist of selections from the orchestra, band, quartette, glee club and readings.

WIDOW MAY FILE CHARGE IN SLAYING

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15 — Additional evidence must be secured, declares Ezra W. Decoto, district attorney of Alameda county, before he will advise any action against Michael J. McGuire, San Francisco labor leader, accusing him of implication in the slaying of Henry Gloy, Oakland man who was shot and killed by three bandits on September 30.

Decoto was visited by Fred Whitmore, secretary of the Bay View Lodge of Masons, and told that Mrs. Gloy was ready to swear to a warrant charging McGuire with murder. Decoto said he advised Whitmore to tell Mrs. Gloy to wait until the police could unearth more evidence, as that submitted to the Alameda grand jury implicated only Frank H. Grant, in addition to Leonard V. Orr, who was shot and killed by Gloy.

Decoto says the police are investigating every angle of the murder and intimates that further developments are expected at any time.

Richard V. McSorley, acting Chief of Police of Oakland, confirms the visit of Whitmore and says that he sent Whitmore to Decoto.

"What Are You Doing to Prolong the Life of Your Teeth and Your Good Looks?"

"The health of the people is one of the most important questions of the day." Anything which conceals information about health is little short of criminal.

People are entitled to know all about their teeth—all about dentistry—for infected teeth cause widespread sickness, disease and suffering. People can't know of these things unless they are told, and the best way to tell them is to advertise.

I advertise—because advertising educates and tells where good dentistry can be had, and the great masses of the people are now getting good dentistry while under the old style only the favored few knew about it and could afford it.

SANTA ANA REALTORS WIN RECOGNITION AT CONCLAVE

Santa Ana and Orange county realtors were returning home today from the annual convention of the California Real Estate association at Sacramento, more enthusiastic than ever over the activities of the state association and the success it is having throughout the state.

The importance and influence of the Santa Ana Board of Realtors was recognized by the election of Freeman H. Bloodgood as a director at large. Bloodgood has been a district director and Frank Pope, president of the local board, was chosen his successor. E. A. White was re-elected to the position of vice president, giving him jurisdiction over the eighth district. He held the position last year and his work in the district was highly commended by Fraser O. Reed, retiring president.

Auxiliary Boosted.
As president of the association of board secretaries, J. C. Wallace, secretary of the Santa Ana board, was prominent in the real activities of the big meet.

Pope was complimented by being made chairman of the breakfast meeting of presidents of all the boards represented at the annual gathering.

Mrs. Carl Mock, president of the auxiliary of the Santa Ana Board of Realtors, the first organization of its kind in the world, distinguished herself in an address at the Friday luncheon honoring women real estate brokers identified with the state organization. Mrs. Mock related the incidents that led to the creation of the auxiliary.

Fullerton went on the map in a big way Thursday night at the home-talk contest. Master Leslie Tanner, 5-year-old wonder, delivered the real address of the evening. However, he was disqualified as he is not an active realtor.

Land Gets Big Ovation.
With wonderful enunciation, a memory that was marvelous and a delivery that was surprising, the little man brought down the house. At the conclusion of his address men and women rose and applauded him for five minutes, until he responded with a brief oration.

The little wonder will be presented with at least two cups, one by Santa Barbara and one by Beverly Hills.

With twenty-nine men and women present, Santa Ana created an impression on the delegates. At the president's ball, members of the local board presented the dancers with balloons, on which had been printed the name of the board. Fun reigned supreme while the balloons lasted—but they did not last long because one or two "smart guys" found pleasure in puncturing the wind-containers with pins.

Presentation of the "filers" in an incident that nearly caused serious injury to Carl Mock. Mock was one of three men who brought the inflated balloons into the ballroom. When he entered the hotel lobby holding twenty-five balloons in each hand, some man touched one of the balloons with a lighted cigar. Instantly Mock was the center of twenty-five exploding and burning balloons. His right hand was burned and the back of his neck was seared. His injuries were given attention by Joe Smith and Max Smith.

At the convention banquet Friday evening noise balloons were passed to the guests and throughout the evening a bedlam of noise served to remind everyone of Santa Ana.

Caravan Is Feature.
Conceded to have been the largest gathering of realtors, in point of numbers, yet the convention was declared not to have been superior to that held in Santa Ana in 1922.

The automobile caravan to the south, the cars numbering approximately 125, was one of the most pleasing incidents of the convention, so far as the Southern delegates were concerned.

The realtors and their wives were entertained royally en route. One of the most noticeable features of the convention was the number of women present. It was estimated that 90 per cent of the realtors were accompanied by their wives.

New Standards Seen.
That the local state organizations are effecting a change in the type of men engaged in the business, was commented on frequently. It was pointed out that, judging from the type of men present at the convention, men skilled in business now are turning their attention to the profession, since it is being placed on a higher plane by beneficial legislation and by the high ideals of the boards and associations.

Present from Santa Ana included the Messrs. and Mesdames F. C. Pope, E. A. White, J. Wiley Harris, W. Frank Harris, Joseph Smith, W. B. Martin, D. M. Peters, W. L. Salisbury, Max Smith, H. W. Williamson, Carl Mock and C. N. Grace, and J. C. Wallace and John Knox.

Howard Williams and son, Ralph, represented the board at Orange. Bird Beebe was in attendance from Anaheim. Fullerton was represented by a number of delegates, while J. A. Armistead put in a good word for Huntington Beach. Armistead spoke for his home city in the contest, as did W. B. Martin for Santa Ana.

DAYLIGHT THUG LOCKS WOMAN IN CLOSET

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15.—Mrs. Ralph McLeran, wife of Supervisor McLeran, was seized by a burglar whom she accosted in the hall of her flat at 2474 Fulton street, and after the man had threatened her with the command, "Keep quiet or I'll kill you," he thrust her roughly into a clothes closet and locked the door.

Mrs. McLeran remained a prisoner in the closet for more than three hours, or until she was released by Supervisor McLeran upon his arrival home from the city hall shortly after 6 p. m.

Matron Suffers Shock
Hearing muffled shouts and knocking in his wife's bedroom, McLeran hurried through the ransacked apartment to the closet and released his wife. She was suffering from shock and severe bruises about the hands, the result of rough handling on the part of the daylight burglar.

"After he had almost thrown me into the closet," Mrs. McLeran said, "I heard him ransacking the two bedrooms. He apparently worked very fast because not more than five minutes later I heard him leaving by the back stairway."

Jewelry Valued at $1500
A careful canvass of their belongings by the McLerans showed that valuable articles of jewelry valued at approximately $1500 had been taken by the thief. Among the valuables are a diamond-tudded wrist watch valued at $450, a platinum lavalliere valued at $250, a $200 platinum and diamond bar pin, diamond studs valued at $150, as well as $65 in currency.

An examination showed the burglar had gained entrance to the McLeran flat by forcing the lock on the kitchen door. It was the noise of the door being forced that brought Mrs. McLeran from her bedroom into the hall, where she met the burglar.

Can Identify Assailant
There was no one else in the house at the time, the maid having taken the afternoon off.
"The man was roughly dressed," Mrs. McLeran said, continuing her account of the burglary, "and spoke with a slightly foreign accent. I am sure I would know him again if I saw him. He was apparently between 30 and 35 years old and was about five feet six inches tall."

ROADS BEING BUILT
MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 15.—Speaking of the development of the province of Quebec as a holiday resort, the Hon. J. L. Perron, minister of roads, stated that ten years ago there was not in the province one mile of good roads over which one could travel safely in the spring or fall. Now there are some six thousand miles of roadway which can be traveled with safety and pleasure the whole of the year round. Ten years ago the tourist traffic from the United States was practically nil. This year to date some 700,000 Americans have visited Quebec.

WOMAN INJURED IN CRASH IS IDENTIFIED

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15.—Maintaining that she is not a bootlegger and that she supplied liquor to a minor upon the latter's solicitation, Mrs. Ruth Hess, 26, admitted by a number of delegates, was lodged in the Berkeley city jail yesterday on a charge of selling whisky to 16-year-old Evelyn Davis, who lives at the Addison apartment, 2112 Addison street, Berkeley. The girl was seriously injured when she leaped from a window, while she is said to have been intoxicated.

A warrant for the arrest of Mrs. Hess was issued late Monday, on the complaint of Evelyn's sister, Marguerite Davis, 18, who will appear against the defendant, because her sister is not able to leave the hospital, where she is being treated for injuries suffered in the leap.

"I am not a bootlegger," Mrs. Hess told police. "I tried to bestow a favor in supplying a stimulant to a girl who appeared far beyond her actual age, when she came to me claiming she was ill. Now she has compromised me because I tried to help her."

"Both the injured girl and her sister have figured in several parties in their apartment, which I have not attended, but could not help noticing because of the noise."

Because of the way she spoke or her experiences and "parties" I thought Evelyn much older than she is. So, when she told me she needed some liquor, because she was ill, I went to a friend and got some for her."

Mrs. Hess was booked on the charge at the local police station. She is held in custody in default of $1000 bail.

Less-Serious Charge Looms For Truckster As Patient Improved

Reported improvement in the condition of Robert Corey, Santa Ana, who received numerous fractures to both legs when his car struck a trailer that had been left in the darkness on Huntington Beach boulevard last Monday night, today diminished legal complications here involving O. V. Palmer, Long Beach truck driver, who was alleged to have left the trailer on the highway without lights. Palmer is at liberty under $1500 bail, pending trial of a charge that he violated the state motor vehicle act.

Corey has been in a critical condition at the Community hospital here since the accident. Today's report of his condition being the first to show improvement, Palmer was said to be facing a probable charge of manslaughter if Corey failed to recover.

CITY TEACHER'S OUSTING CASE DEADLOCKED

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15.—Whether or not the board of education has the legal right to discharge a teacher in the public schools without first proving charges of unsatisfactory service is a question which may have to be settled in the courts, it was decided, when the board met to consider the demand of John E. Wall for $600 pay he alleges is due him.

Wall was employed as a substitute teacher in Mission high school until early in June this year, and then was given notice that his services were no longer needed. He immediately put in a claim for full pay for the remainder of the school year, and also a claim for pay for full time while he was working on a half-pay basis. Wall claimed that he had served his two-year probationary period, and under the law is a full-fledged member of the school department.

Although a committee of school principals was appointed to report on Wall's alleged incompetency, Mrs. Mary Frag, member of the board, declared that she had failed to make a case. She suggested that the salary demand shall be paid and the status of Wall determined late. The principals on the efficiency of probationers who investigated Wall's case were Charles H. Murphy of high school of commerce; W. J. Drey of Mission high school and J. P. Nourse of Galileo high school. One of the charges contained in a confidential report to the board was that Wall had been unprofessional in registering with the school department, and that he had secured possession of the registration book "clandestinely" and entered his name without the knowledge of his principal.

MAN HELD IN JAIL AS SLAYER OF BOY

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15.—Ray Brooker, also known as Brucker, wanted on a charge of murder in connection with the slaying of Louis Bacciocca, newspaper circulator, a month ago, was arrested at the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. D. Daly, 512 Fell street.

Acting on information that Brooker was hiding at the Fell street house, Detectives Thomas Reagan, Thomas Conlon, George Richards and Henry Kalmbach, went to the place and surrounding the house to prevent a chance of escape, entered and found Brooker in bed. His mother-in-law and his wife, Mrs. Myrtle Brooker, were in the house at the time.

Brooker made no attempt to resist arrest, telling the detectives that he intended to surrender anyway. At police headquarters, Brooker refused to make any statement or to answer questions concerning the whereabouts of Edward Neilas, known as Neelis, wanted by the police as the actual murderer of Bacciocca. Brooker said he had been advised by a lawyer to make no statement until the proper time.

He was booked on a charge of murder in connection with the Bacciocca slaying, and on additional charges of robbery and burglary. The latter charges grew out of the alleged assault and robbery of Carlo Arletto, 2 Colton street, and the burglary of the home of Mrs. James Castiglio, 86 Colton street, several hours before the shooting of Bacciocca.

70 DAYS UNTIL CHRISTMAS, IS TRAGIC NEWS AT P. O.

Word Significant, However, to Shoppers, Merchants Again Have Warned

EARLY ACTION URGED

Postal Staff Already Has More Than It Can Do, Chief Points Out

By TOM LEWIS
Seventy days—and then Christmas! Ah, yes—long way off, and all that sort of thing! Nobody's thinking about that!

Well, we shall see what we shall see. C. D. Overshiner, Santa Ana's retiring postmaster, is thinking about it. Likewise, the new postmaster.

And the postmaster general. And the overworked postal clerks.

Also the superintendent of city delivery. Ditto, the rural deliverers.

Double ditto the merchants of city and county. And the kiddies.

Time Opportunity. And—that all-important factor in the great Christmas scheme of things—DAD. To say nothing of mother, who, so far as real sentiment is concerned, is greater than all of these.

Yea, verily. All these and then some.

"In the first place," says the progressive merchant, "this is the time to think about Christmas. If you wait until the eve before Christmas, you'll surely be out of luck. Buy early, mail early, and save time, worry and money."

"Amen!" echoes Postmaster Overshiner, who, having been through eight sieges of Christmas hysteria, speaks as one vested with authority.

Sees New Mark. "Unless all signs fail," Overshiner added, "we will have one of the most terrific rushes this city has ever experienced. Last year, our stamp sales ran fully $5,000 ahead of those of the previous Christmas. I am no prophet, nor yet the son of a prophet, but I feel safe in predicting that this year the local postoffice will run $6,000 or $7,000 ahead of last year in this respect. The city is growing so steadily and Christmas consignments are multiplying so rapidly that there is no way of saying just where we will end."

One of the problems confronting the Santa Ana post office this year, as last, is the shortage of carriers, Overshiner declared.

Carriers Needed. "Right now," said the postmaster, "we could use, and should have, at least three more carriers. We are utterly unable, with our present force, to serve residents residing on many of the new streets in this city."

The postmaster said the office force and carriers, as usual, will make every reasonable effort to handle expeditiously the great bulk

JUVENILE LEAD HAS HIGHEST PRAISE FOR PLAYERS' DIRECTOR

Lauding the work of Ernest C. Phillips in directing the Community Players, and stating that the organization were the most congenial people she has ever seen, Mrs. Hazel Landers Hummel, who is cast for the juvenile lead in "The Thirteenth Chair," which will be shown at the Temple theater here October 29 to November 1, inclusive, declared she "enjoyed dramatic work beyond expression of mere words."

"Unstinted praise should be given Mr. Phillips," she stated. "He has taken a group of new players and is developing them into real actors. He adds confidence to the uninitiated, bringing out the best that is in them."

"The play chosen this year calls for an unusual amount of pantomime. Facial expressions are the hardest things in stage work to perfect, but Mr. Phillips is rounding the new actors into shape rapidly, and he should be given full credit for it."

You see, only about four of us have had any previous experience worth mentioning, so Mr. Phillips has to bear the brunt of the training responsibility.

Sell Tickets. Season tickets for the series of plays to be produced this winter by the Players are now on sale here. They are greatly in demand by local theatergoers, who not only realize the saving that may be effected by purchasing them, but who also are enthusiastic over the pleasurable evenings that are in store, according to M. B. Wellington, president of the players.

Mrs. Hummel last year played the lead in "Seven Keys to Baldpate," taking the part of Mary Martin, a newspaper reporter. She also appeared in offerings of the Ebell club, the Elks and the Orange County Choral Union.

For eight years she studied dramatic art under the direction of Benjamin Sovel in Los Angeles, and played important roles in a number of productions shown at the Gamut club.

Stage Offers Recreation. "While I have been doing some work in dramatics," Mrs. Hummel said, "my chief occupation is in music. But I have been so busy with concerts and recitals that I am extremely glad to have an opportunity to take part in dramatics, for it offers me the sort of diversion which I feel that I need."

Mrs. Hummel appeared in concerts given by the state and national federation of music clubs.

SUGAR MISSING, POLICE HAVE 'SWEET JOB'

Santa Ana police today were in a "sweet mess" and all because of C. R. Alling, proprietor of a confectionery here. They are on the trail of a sack of sugar lost, strayed or stolen from the corner of Fourth and Main streets.

According to the story told Desk Sergeant Lutz by Alling, he was returning to the confectionery with a sack of sugar in the rear of his automobile. A pedestrian stopped him and broke the news that he had dropped the sugar. The driver of another auto retrieved the sack against the curb until the owner returned to claim it.

But there was another man in the plot, according to Alling. This second man is not so honest—at least if he is honest he forgot all about it for a moment, Alling ventured.

According to Alling, he turned his car as soon as he found the sack of sugar was missing and returned to the corner, intending to thank the man who retrieved it from the street and reclaim his lost "sweets."

Everything was "pretty" until he reached the place where the sugar was supposed to be awaiting its rightful owner. It was gone.

Spectators told Alling that a truck driver stopped, said the sack was his property, loaded it on his truck and disappeared. Now the police are trying to pick up the trail of the lost sugar. That is a "sweet job" for a policeman.

Does that riveter, perched up there on the third floor, miss a point in the fine art of driving home the red hot bolt? Does he fail to take advantage of a bit of technique that will add to the efficiency of his work and the durability of the great steel skeleton?

Make no mistake, this slight figure, squatting beside you here in the street, sees it all. You may rest assured he will correct that fault. Instantly he does so.

"Higher Ups" Alert. "Hey, you!" he yells, in that strident, piercing tone, which carries, high and far, in spite of all the clatter that is about him, "Hey, you! Shorty! Do this, and that, and don't do that. You're gumming up the works!"

With this a tall, gray-haired man, rigged out in knickers and wearing heavy gloves to protect his hands, stalks out of the little hut perched up on the fence above Fourth street. A man verging on rotundity, but capable withal, and having at his finger's ends all the odds and ends in this fascinating business of running up a mighty steel structure.

This your mental secretary whispers, is the boss of all the bosses. Not for him to run up those broad, leaning ladders with the agility of this youth, with the snag in his overalls and the spud wrench dangling from his belt; no, running is not in his line, but he climbs the ladder, nevertheless, stopping a moment to chat with the riveters, watching the flaming bolts as they are hurled, one by one, to the riveter's assistant. The assistant catches them, with the greatest ease, in his metal megaphone, seizes them with his tongs and slides them into place, in the tall steel columns, where the man with the "gun" drives them home with relentless precision.

Orders Relayed. All this, the gray-haired man

STEEL ARTISANS HERE LAUGH AT PERIL

Aim at Perfect Work on Bank Building Ranks Any Personal Fear

BY TOM LEWIS

Speaking of romance, how about the huge steel skeleton rapidly taking shape at the corner of Fourth and Main streets?

These sturdy, begrimed workmen, swarming over the First National bank that is to be—who are they and what are they? Human spiders, squint-eyed and fearless, climbing, crawling, sprawling and squirming. Ironworkers, these, and brimming with romance.

Let's stand here a moment, on Main street, and see if we can catch the drift of it all. They are about to hoist one of those great steel girders into space, and this is the signal for a burst of activity.

Group Is Itinerant. This activity, unhindered by the steady and relentless rattle of begoggled riveters, has at its center a very resourceful-looking man. Names are futile, in a case like this; too much noise, to catch them, in the first place, and a desire to avoid them, in the second place, in order that none may feel slighted.

After all, what is a name between ironworkers? To one another, they are this and that—Shorty, Skinny, Fat, Bill, Jim and, more often, merely "Hey, You!"

They are in Santa Ana today, in Birmingham tomorrow, in Seattle the day after that, plodding along in the canyon of New York's Broadway the day following.

One year they finish the last word in Gotham superstructures; the next they erect a bridge that is a living, glowing poem; again they flock into Chicago to outstrip all previous efforts in defying the elements and erecting one of those towering monuments that seem to spring up like mushrooms overnight.

Experience Stands Out. They roam the wide face of the globe, these showmen, high-priced specialists in steel, and they seem wholly devoid of fear and the consequences of a misplaced bolt or beam.

This efficient-looking man in the street, now, for example. He has served long and faithfully in this hazardous game. His all-around air of experience tells you this. As he drops down beside you, on the running board of a standing automobile, his keen, searching eye takes in every detail of the work going forward on the structure that is to be the First National Bank.

He is the straw boss, this unpretentious figure in soiled khaki and the old slouch hat, but you'd hardly suspect it until you hear him bark—his shrill voice ringing out clearly above the distracting noise of the riveters and the scream of the wind that comes with the breath from the canyon that men have called the Santa Ana.

Catches Mistake. Sitting there beside him on the running board—he with a frayed blueprint in his hand, you with a full sheet of paper in your mental typewriter—you are made aware in short order that here is a man who speaks with authority.

Does the huge steel crane, swinging obediently to cryptic orders, thrust its huge arm a bit too far into the street?

He knows it instantly—and a beautiful, highly-colored oath goes swirling into space, above the howl of the wind, to be heard and obeyed by a man in blue denim, adroitly manipulating ropes on the frame of the structure far above Main street.

Does that riveter, perched up there on the third floor, miss a point in the fine art of driving home the red hot bolt? Does he fail to take advantage of a bit of technique that will add to the efficiency of his work and the durability of the great steel skeleton?

Make no mistake, this slight figure, squatting beside you here in the street, sees it all. You may rest assured he will correct that fault. Instantly he does so.

"Higher Ups" Alert. "Hey, you!" he yells, in that strident, piercing tone, which carries, high and far, in spite of all the clatter that is about him, "Hey, you! Shorty! Do this, and that, and don't do that. You're gumming up the works!"

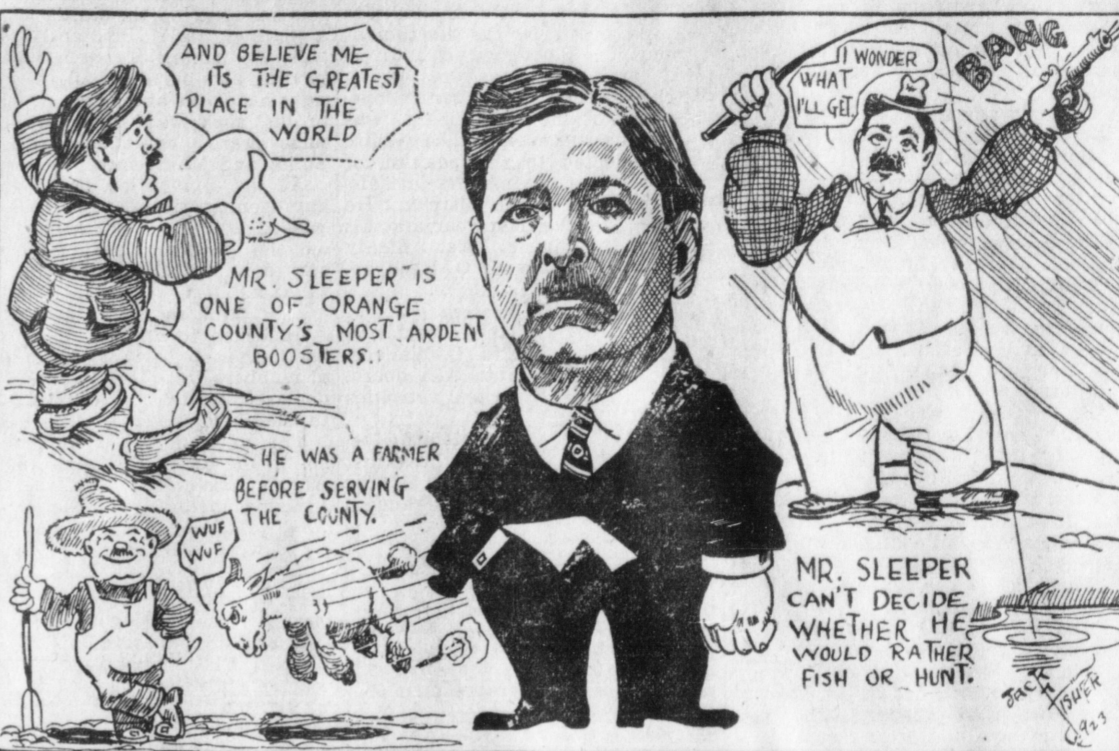

With this a tall, gray-haired man, rigged out in knickers and wearing heavy gloves to protect his hands, stalks out of the little hut perched up on the fence above Fourth street. A man verging on rotundity, but capable withal, and having at his finger's ends all the odds and ends in this fascinating business of running up a mighty steel structure.

This your mental secretary whispers, is the boss of all the bosses. Not for him to run up those broad, leaning ladders with the agility of this youth, with the snag in his overalls and the spud wrench dangling from his belt; no, running is not in his line, but he climbs the ladder, nevertheless, stopping a moment to chat with the riveters, watching the flaming bolts as they are hurled, one by one, to the riveter's assistant. The assistant catches them, with the greatest ease, in his metal megaphone, seizes them with his tongs and slides them into place, in the tall steel columns, where the man with the "gun" drives them home with relentless precision.

Orders Relayed. All this, the gray-haired man

COUNTY ASSESSOR MAKES SURE ARTIST MAKES GOOD LIKENESS

JURIST'S INITIAL TRIAL HERE IS DIVORCE SUIT

Superior Judge F. C. Drumm and department 3, latest additions to the Orange county superior court here, will have their maiden case for trial tomorrow.

The appellant of the case, however, appeared to be rather inappropriate as the case involves married persons, being a divorce trial. Mrs. Clydia J. Hamilton is suing her husband, Charles Hamilton, for a decree on grounds of alleged cruelty and non-support. Hamilton is expected to contest the case with a cross-complaint charging desertion. The trial is scheduled to start at 10 a. m.

Clerk H. M. Head and Bailiff Dan Adams round out the staff of court officials who will formally open the new department of the court.

In her complaint Mrs. Hamilton charged that her husband, instead of supporting her and their son, spent his time as a street speaker and radical organizations in Long Beach, once being arrested while addressing a street meeting.

He also followed various religious cults, she alleged, and on Thanksgiving day, 1921, forced his wife and son to accompany him to a negro church for Thanksgiving dinner, she declared.

Mrs. Hamilton asks custody of the son and a "reasonable" sum for the boy's support, beside $200 attorney fees. She is represented by Attorney Louis P. Russell of Los Angeles.

In his answer, filed through Attorney John H. Langston of Huntington Beach, Hamilton denied his wife's charges, and declared that she was a nurse and as such had a much larger income than his own, therefore not being entitled to alimony.

The Hamiltons were married in Los Angeles October 26, 1908, and separated December 9, 1921.

WOODER IN 'SUICIDE' EFFORT IS IMPROVED

C. A. Northrup, Los Angeles youth, who admitted having shot himself after a lover's quarrel with a West Orange girl, was reported today at the county hospital, where he was taken after the shooting by the girl and another youth.

Confessing that he had visited the girl's home Friday evening in a somewhat intoxicated condition and had threatened suicide when the girl turned him away, Northrup said that he went to the Santa Ana river nearby and shot himself in the abdomen with a pistol.

Although the absence of powder marks on Northrup at first created doubt that he had been shot at close enough range to sustain the suicide story, the sheriff's office, after interviewing both principals in the affair, expressed itself as satisfied regarding the truth of Northrup's account.

Local Boxer Handed K. O. By Rum, Claim; Police Add To Loss

Old "Demon" Rum, or an alleged imitation of said "demon" today was said to have scored a knockout over Jack Iman, 1015 West Camille street. Iman, well known in Santa Ana as a boxer, was arrested by Officers Krauchi and Swain last night on a charge of intoxication.

According to the police, Iman objected strenuously to his arrest and during the argument received a black eye. A physician, who examined Iman, said that he was under the influence of liquor. It was asserted that he had been drinking Jamaica ginger.

Iman was locked in the county jail, pending his hearing this afternoon before Acting City Recorder Geoppe.

Crowd around and listen, folks, for we are about to spill some info in regards to one James Sleeper, Orange county's assessor. James is the man who kills two stones with one bird. He keeps Orange county from going broke and keeps you broke.

This morning our boss sent us around to give Sleeper a hearing, so we strolled solemnly into his office at the courthouse.

"We are here to get a confession this morning," we advised. "Also, to sketch your features for The Register."

"So you are going to draw my picture," replied Sleeper. "Can you get a good likeness?"

"Can we?" we shrieked, in indignation. "When we make a picture it's absolutely the mook turtle's mittens. We will sketch a picture that looks more like you than you do."

We were in good voice and our wild reply shook the walls of the courthouse.

"Calm yourself," cried Sleeper, in alarm. "Do your worst—I'm good-natured."

So we proceeded to sharpen our trusty pencil in preparation of our crime committed in the name of art.

"When did you come to Orange county?" we asked Sleeper, as an opening.

In the year 1888," replied the obliging James, "and I've made this paradise my home ever since."

This proved to us at once that Sleeper is a wise man for Orange county is certainly the place that lures the thinking people from the land of frozen ears and chilblains.

Treats All Alike. Sleeper also shows great wisdom in staying here for, as Bill Shakespear so aptly said, "A rolling stone gathers no long green," or was it Ring Lardner? But to go back to our subject, we found Sleeper to be a great booster and a truly hard worker for the good of the county. He is to be congratulated on his fairness in treating all alike.

Huge oil interests may cry and threaten in vain. When Jim Sleeper shoves out his grapping hooks they have to kick through with the jack.

"I started my life work as bookkeeper," resumed Sleeper, in reply to pointed questioning, "but later I began to farm, as that suited me much better and Orange county yields her horn of plenty to all who turn to the soil. My greatest pleasures in spare times are fishing and hunting and Orange county has offered plenty of temptations to both the angler and the nimrod."

Plays Host Here. Sleeper became county assessor in 1911 and has held that office ever since. Recently he was host to a convention of village assessors and state tax officials and took them for many delightful auto trips through the county, so impressing them with nature's beauties in our sunny climate that they are daily fearing an invasion of assessors.

Orange county is indeed fortunate to have James Sleeper serving in his capacity, a man who loves his home and is fond of the simple pleasures of life, and above all is fearless and just in his duties.

"Orange county is the greatest place in the world," said Sleeper, as he shooed us from his office. So we really learned more of Orange county than we did of its assessor.

Well, good-bye. Drop in again, but don't knock.

Man On Sidewalk Is Hurt When Collision Hurls Car Over Curb

An innocent bystander was the victim of an automobile accident at Sixth street and Van Ness avenue yesterday afternoon, according to a report on the police headquarters here today. As two cars collided, one was shoved onto the sidewalk, hurling George Diddle to the sidewalk. He received several bruises and a slight concussion of the brain.

According to a report of the accident made to the police by Leo Rafter, 317 East First street, who was driving the car that knocked Diddle to the sidewalk, he was driving north on Van Ness avenue when an automobile operated by F. M. Woodworth, 1738 Gaviota street, Long Beach, collided with his car, driving it onto the sidewalk. A physician who attended the injured man said his injuries were not serious.

S. F. Policeman Hurt In Auto Accident

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15.—Policeman Thomas Powers of the Southern station, residing at 19 London street, was injured when the machine in which he was riding with Special Policeman Jeremiah Cronin, 548 Fifteenth avenue, was struck at Fell and Octavia streets by another automobile. The driver of the other machine sped away without stopping to render assistance. Powers was thrown out, sustaining concussion of the brain, a lacerated head and cuts of the body. Cronin's machine was thrown upon the sidewalk knocking down Joseph Udell, 2078 McAllister street.

Sam Inouye, 41, Japanese merchant of Delhi, who was believed to have perished, with his wife and their three children, in the earthquake and fire which wiped out thousands of lives in Japan, is alive and uninjured and will return to his Orange county home within the next few months, according to yokiches received here today from Yokohama.

Inouye, who came to Orange county from Pomona about three years ago, sailed for Japan with his family July 20. The party arrived in Yokohama a few days before the great earthquake and fire. Although K. Akiyama, manager, and R. Watanabe, assistant, in Inouye's store at Delhi, made frantic efforts to communicate with their employer, no replies to their letters and cablegrams were forthcoming and they virtually had given up hope when a letter arrived here from Inouye.

According to Inouye, his home at Odawara, thirty miles from Yokohama, was completely destroyed by the earthquake, while a number of houses owned by his father in Yokohama and other cities were wiped out by the fire which followed the earthquake.

QUEST BY BRENTANO'S - QUEST BY THE RIDGEWAY COMPANY

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Loring Ranger offers a hundred thousand dollars for the safe return of his missing daughter, Hope. He is assisted in his search by his good friends, Rustie Higby, attorney, and Juarez Charlie, adventurer.

Acting upon directions from Hope's captors, Ranger leaves a hundred thousand dollars worth of bonds at a specified place. Charlie stations himself near the place mentioned in the letter to Ranger and follows the car that collects the bonds.

At Dr. Bristow's private sanitarium a plot exists between Bristow and a nurse named Copley regarding an inmate registered as Nurse Copley's sister, George Kelsey, detained at the hospital, is friendly with the so-called sister. He decides that the girl is not insane.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
HE knew the girl was acting, but the way she held her pose, never relaxing for a moment into the normal, roused him to wonder and admiration for her courage and strength of will; and the pathos of that courage stirred his heart.

Revolving the riddle as he mused on the porch in the sunshine, his glance strayed from under his down drawn hat to where she sat, the ever-present elder sister knitting beside her.

How alike the two were, and yet how different. Anita, beautiful in a way, but to him repellent—a woman pursuing the course of a perverse, unscrupulous will.

Verna breathed a different air. About her was the atmosphere of one reared in ease and freedom and beauty. She had all the simplicity of good breeding; Anita's veneer was specious.

While he pursued the puzzle, never getting any nearer to a solution, a big, luxurious limousine turned in at the gates and drew up before the entrance. A ponderous, bent old man emerged, carefully assisted by his valet.

Some one important it was without a doubt; for Bristow came down the steps to meet him with jovial camaraderie. There was an amount of luggage which was hastily unloaded and carried upstairs. The new arrival gave some directions to his valet and his chauffeur and then preceded Bristow into the house, as if perfectly familiar with the place.

At the head of the steps, though, to speak to Anita Copley, who had hurried forward with smiling, almost sycophantic deference, and Kelsey got a fair view of him.

"So Alderman Higgins has come back," Kelsey heard the comment of some one behind him. "Wonderful how he holds on."

Miss Copley had followed the old man and Bristow into the house; and with her presence removed, he looked about for the girl. She had risen from her chair and was standing at the far end of the porch.

Avoiding an appearance of haste, he moved down the porch and paused near her, leaning on the railing, while he lighted a cigarette.

"Who is the old man that just came?" she asked. He wondered a little at the note of urgency in her voice over so immaterial a matter.

"Alderman Higgins I heard some one say," he told her. "That is all I know."

She drew in her breath quickly as he mentioned the name. It seemed to confirm a conjecture on her part and carry considerable significance.

"Find out all you can about him," she bade hurriedly, "and let me know."

"I will," said Kelsey. "But why?"

"Don't stop to talk now. We haven't time. She will be right back."

With her usual languid, uncertain step, she moved away toward her chair; and Kelsey returned to the other end of the porch, perplexed to understand the meaning of her request, yet rejoicing that she should have called upon him for a service.

CHAPTER XII
THE house physician, when Kelsey dropped into his office that evening, happened to be in a volatile mood. A medical journal lay upon his desk in which he had just been reading an article that controverted one of his pet theories; and he seized upon the opportunity to refute the fallacy, citing authorities and giving his reasons at length, while he puffed indignantly at his old, black pipe.

Kelsey was pleased to find that he could genuinely concur in the little man's views; and by his advice and with his assistance a letter was composed to the publication, which they were convinced left the offending author not a leg to stand on.

So delighted was Morton with the vigor of the rejoinder and so grateful that he expanded into unaccustomed warmth; and Kelsey took quick advantage of the propitious moment to strike.

"By the way," indifferently, "who was the old rooster that arrived this morning in such state?"

Morton looked at him in surprise.

"Why, you know. Or, sure enough, you didn't come here until after he'd left for Bermuda. That, my son, is ex-Alderman William Higgins. Mean to say you never heard of 'Hobo Bill'?"

Well, as Kelsey shook his head, "a half dozen years ago he used to be a power in New York; about the same type, I guess, as some of your picturesquely named politicians in Chicago. He started out in life as a tramp, they say; but somehow he managed to edge into politics, and cleaned up big; worth anywhere from seven to ten millions, I guess. He stays here when he's not off on one of his periodical trips. Funny old coddler."

"I should say so," Kelsey agreed. "It's the first time I ever heard of a man voluntarily making an insane asylum his headquarters."

"Oh, he's no bug. Half blind, pretty well broken down physically, but mentally keen enough; shrewd, devilish shrewd, let me tell you. And as to his being here, why, he had some nervous affection, you see, used to go on fierce sprees and all that, and Bristow got him into shape. They're like brothers."

"So?" Kelsey was mildly interested. "I saw the two of them out together this afternoon in Bristow's new Rolls-Royce."

Morton filled his pipe and looked over it at Kelsey with a humorous, contemplative smile and a wag of his head.

"Yes, some car. I've seen the days when Bristow had to hoof it all the way to the station, if he wanted to get into town."

"Times have changed, eh?" Kelsey was stretched out in his chair. "Not always so prosperous?"

"Not always," Morton's reminiscent smile still lingered. "When I first came here, seven years ago, things were so far from prosperous, that we never knew from one week to another whether we could keep going or not. Then, all of a sudden, we were on easy street. Bristow began putting all sorts of improvements on the place, buying more land, throwing out new wings, installing modern appliances, re-furnishing, re-decorating, splurging on cars, turning himself out like the fillets of the field, and making the old dump one of the highest-priced refuges for fashionable nuts in the whole East."

"Found the buried treasure under the old mill, what?" Kelsey yawned slightly.

Morton chuckled. "Where the money came from, I never knew. Bristow's close-mouthed and it would take a bolder man than I am to question him about his affairs."

"You see," he explained, "all this happened after 'Hobo Bill' came into our lives, and I've always believed that he gave the tip that was responsible for our rise to greatness."

The bell of the telephone jingled, and Morton interrupted himself to answer the call.

"Yes, Doctor," he said; then reluctantly, as he turned round eyes toward Kelsey. "Yes—Yes, he's here, Doctor." After a moment, he hung up the receiver.

"It's Bristow," he said; "he wants to see you in his office right away."

Kelsey flung himself out of Morton's room and down the hall to meet his anticipated visitor.

Sleek and shining, Bristow lounged on the hearth rug, looking down into the clear flame of a birchwood fire.

The conference upstairs from which he had just come had left him in the best of humor, and he felt in the mood to play a cat and mouse game with Kelsey, whom he regarded as lamentably lacking in finesse.

"Ah, Kelsey," he said pleasantly, taking a chair himself and waving hospitably toward another one. "Sit down and have a cigarette. I've pushed across the table a humidor containing various brands in the different compartments."

Kelsey stiffly declined both the chair and the cigarette. This unwanted cordiality made him wary. But Bristow's smiling geniality was proof against the rebuff.

"Rather late," he said; "but I was anxious for a little talk with you—about yourself." He was grave now, but kindly. "Although I may have seemed to neglect you, you have really been very much in my mind. To speak frankly, your present manner of life is not good for you; it leaves you too much time to brood."

Bristow lifted the letter containing the magazine offer from the table, and getting up handed it to the younger man.

Kelsey rapidly glanced over it, but before he could speak Bristow took up his thread again.

"I have neither the time, nor, with a mellow laugh, 'the inclination to undertake it. Too much research; too much work altogether. But it struck me that it would be just the thing for you. I would have to sign the articles of course, but that is detail."

Kelsey saw himself pulling Bristow's chestnuts out of the fire! Not for a kingdom.

"Do I understand," he asked with exaggerated humility, his mouth still twitching, "that you wish to entrust, not that hypothetical quantity, your honor, but your name, your scientific reputation to my unworthy hands?"

The shaft glanced off, without leaving a scratch.

"Don't belittle yourself, my boy," benignly. "You are, I know, an excellent and well-informed writer."

"I'm sorry," Kelsey's tone was elaborately satirical, "but it will be impossible for me to oblige you."

"Think twice before you refuse," Bristow urged persuasively.

He went on, clothing the same power in fresh phrases; but takes in, and a lot more besides, as he relays the message of the foreman, down in the street, to the riveters, whose ears for the most part, are deaf to all save the terrible symphony of their own mighty orchestra.

On up to the fourth floor climbs the boss of all the bosses, passing other bosses with blueprints in their hands and pausing here and there, to watch the towering steel boom as it swings about, to deliver its tons and tons of steel to the waiting girder-riders who, spud wrenches in hand, await their opportunity to ride the beams to their rightful places.

In World Their Own
Easy freemasonry, here, with every man functioning 100 per cent, and the big boss of all the bosses roaming around, and watching, with keen eyes, the efforts of the under bosses and the workmen to carry out the rapid orders as they are given.

Perhaps it is just a wave of the hand, a nod of the head, an almost imperceptible twist on a bit of rope, but it all has a deep underlying significance for these men of the iron nerve.

They have trained themselves to live in a world apart, to give their ear to the sounds that are peculiar to their tribe, to obey implicitly when the command is given, and to rely on the wisdom of their bosses and their own God-given intuitions to save them from disaster in the hour of hazard.

Red-hot bolts, swaying girders, swinging platforms and all the dangers that beset the day have combined to force these men to do their work well while they are about it. Death, lurking in the background, is ever and always grinning at them.

But you can't make them admit that this is so? Hardly!

Danger? Huh! Whoever heard of such a thing. Pah!

"One thing is certain, however," said Overshiner, "the people can help very materially by bearing in mind the old, old admonition to do their Christmas shopping early and get their parcels in the mail many days before the holidays. Packages marked, 'Do not open until Christmas,' can be mailed at any time. This will be one of the best ways to help us meet the Christmas rush."

"THE UNTAMABLE" CLOSES AT PRINCESS TONIGHT
As a "flapper" type, Gladys Walton, pretty screen star, has a distinct following with the motion picture public. She gained widespread popularity in "Pink Tights," "Gossip" and other well-known plays.

In "The Untamable" in which she may now be seen at the Princess theater, she has a role that is said to offer the greatest test of her dramatic skill of any production in which she has yet appeared. It is that of a girl of dual personality, the portrayal of which affords a wide range of acting.

all the time he was covertly scanning Kelsey's face, watching for that quick gleam of the eye which would show that the other had awakened to the latent possibilities within his proposal.

"THE FIGHTING BLADE" NOW AT TEMPLE THEATRE
Most every girl has the secret ambition to see herself in a man's clothes. Most every girl also harbors a secret desire to fight like a man. It was given to Dorothy MacKall, a Ziegfeld Polles girl with no little experience on stage and screen, to do both in John S. Robertson's production, "The Fighting Blade," starring Richard Barthelmess, now appearing at the Temple theatre.

Miss MacKall plays the role of a lady of high degree who is drawn by chance into the intrigue and events leading to the deposition of Charles I during the conflict between the Roundheads and the Cavaliers. Her life is saved by the Kirstenbrook (Barthelmess), an enemy of her relatives and later an important confidant of Oliver Cromwell. How her gratitude finds expression which later saves her from an unwelcome marriage, and how Kirstenbrook paves the way for Cromwell's victory is told in a picture replete with excitement, daring exploits, secret amours and honorable loves, hairbreadth escapes, and terrific encounters.

Besides those named, important roles are played by Frederick Burton, Morgan Wallace, Lee Baker, Bradley Barker and Allyn King.

MYSTERY PLAY AT YOST THEATRE THURSDAY
"The Cat and the Canary," by John Willard, will come to the Yost theatre Thursday night October 18. This is the latest of the popular thrill plays, it is said, by playwrights who have seen it to rank with "The Bat" and "The 13th Chair." If this craze of the public for thrill plays continues some ingenious individual will be marketing a shock absorber for use in the theater. The mystery play will make it profitable. However in "The Cat and the Canary" the author, it is said, has provided a self-starting shock absorber in the form of natural comedy—both in lines and situations. When the nerves become so tense it seems only a scream can give for relief, along comes a funny line or out pops a comical situation and the shriek is strangled—but there are two places in the course of the play where the audience almost invariably does shriek the warning, despite the laugh made shock absorbers.

"SHADOWS OF THE NORTH" AT PRINCESS TOMORROW
There is no more popular player of vigorous outdoor roles than William Desmond, who comes to the Princess tomorrow in his latest attraction, "Shadows of the North."

In his varied career Desmond has played almost every type of the outdoor man but in his latest feature he is said to eclipse all previous efforts and his portrayal of "Wolf" Darby is said to set a new standard for this type of character.

BATTLE TO 7-7 TIESanta Ana Has Ball on One Yard Line As Game Ends;
Williams Shines

Because those who draw up the national rules provided that fifteen instead of sixteen minute quarters shall constitute a football game, the historians at the Santa Ana high school today were marking down on their record books Saturday's 7 to 7 tie between the Pomona College freshmen and Ed Covington's Poly gridders.

After having battered down from their own 40-yard line to the Pomona 1-yard mark where the college yearlings were bunched together, desperately resolved to resist that last punch at the line, those fifteen minutes of the last quarter came to an end and the game remained what it had since early in the afternoon, 7 to 7.

The gods of fate, however, had merely changed from Santa Ana to Pomona for at the close of the first half the college men had possession of the ball on the local 4-yard line with three downs to go.

Penalties hurt Locals

Pomona scored first with Covington's second string lineup defending the Santa Ana goal. The visitors kicked off to Spencer. Santa Ana immediately booted to midfield. Four off-side penalties followed in quick succession. These, added to gains registered by McCormick and Maxson, brought the ball to Santa Ana's 5-yard mark from where Maxson plunged straight through center for the touchdown. McCormick kicked goal.

The visitors again kicked off, this time to Meisinger. Santa Ana couldn't dent the yearling defense and kicked to midfield.

Again the Pomona backs waded through the second string's line and again they were aided by penalties for off-side play of the locals. With the ball on Santa Ana's 10-yard line, Covington ordered his first time into the fray. On the first play Maxson fumbled and a trio of Poly linemen fell on the ball.

"Greeky" Williams Kicks

"Greeky" Williams immediately kicked out of danger. After that, except for the last few minutes of the second quarter, the locals had the better of the melee.

Williams recovered a Pomona fumble on his own 43-yard line and, on the next play, carried the ball to midfield. Le Bard circled right end for 12 yards and he and Luck made another ten yards together.

Williams carried the ball to the Pomona 21-yard line but Luck fumbled on the next play and the visitors recovered.

Pomona kicked out of bounds on its own 30 yard line and Santa Ana took it over in six plays. Quarterback Cook carrying the ball, A forward pass, Williams to Cook, helped the drive by twelve yards. Williams kicked goal, knotting the score.

Santa Ana showed a powerful offensive in the next few minutes. After Pomona had booted over the goal line, Santa Ana, in two plays, took the ball to within striking distance of the college goal line.

Funs End For 35 Yards

From a kick formation, "Greeky" Williams ran around his right end for 35 yards. Dan Cook made 22 yards on a criss-cross. On the next play Williams threw a pass to McIntyre which fell incomplete over the goal line.

Pomona took possession of the ball near midfield a few minutes later when Williams kicked out of bounds. Two beautifully executed punts by Phillips gave the yearling first down on Santa Ana's 4-yard line when time was called.

The second half, except for the last few minutes, was chiefly a kicking duel. The advantage rested with the locals.

The break came when McIntyre intercepted a Pomona pass at midfield. Williams immediately hurried a long pass to Smith. The end got his hands on it but it bounced into the air and into the hands of Bill Luck who was stopped on the Pomona 20-yard line.

Pass Makes First Down

Spencer passed to Williams for another first down on the yearling's 12-yard line and Luck and Williams carried the ball to the Pomona 1-yard line where time was called.

Williams and Le Bard looked like a million dollars in the Poly backfield and little "Chappie" Townsend again was the chief cheese in the local line. If Townsend plays throughout the season as he has in the last few games, they will have to use a shotgun to keep him off of the All-Southern this fall.

Covington and Bill Cole were to give their charges a light workout this afternoon but tomorrow will open a strenuous week of preparation for the Long Beach

BABE RUTH SCORES FIRST SERIES RUN

The Giants won the first game, but Babe Ruth scored the first run of the series for the Yankees when he scored on Bob Meusel's double in the first inning. Picture shows Ruth crossing the plate. Hank Gowdy, Giant catcher, is shown in front of the plate, hoping for a throwin from the outfield.

Despite the insistence of the owners and manager of the St. Louis Cardinals that Rogers Hornsby, the National League's best ball player, will play in St. Louis next season or not at all, there are reasons to believe that there are chances, at least, for some other club to obtain the services of the Cardinal star.

The outcome of the pennant race in the National league next season may be influenced in a very large degree by what means the St. Louis club decides upon in solving the problem caused by the rebellion of Hornsby.

For several years, Hornsby has acted like a satisfied player with the Cardinals, and as long as he seemed to have no objections, the statements made by the club owners when the Giants were said to have offered $200,000 for him, that he would never be sold or traded looked to be final.

Hornsby, from all indications, is not satisfied now. His act in taking a poke at Branch Rickey indicated that he was not sympathetic with the policies of his manager and his refusal to play in one of the late games of the season practically established that indication as a fact.

As long as he is dissatisfied and in a state of open disagreement with the management, Hornsby's playing must necessarily suffer and his value to the club will decrease not only by the effect it will have upon him as an individual, but because of the demoralization that it is bound to work with the whole club.

Perhaps the owners do mean it now when they say that they will not dispose of him, but they will not be wise in taking that stand. With Hornsby on the open market, the club should be able to get enough material in a trade to make the club at least stronger than it is now.

Chicago and Chicago and Pittsburgh probably will engage in spirited bidding for Hornsby, if he is placed upon the market.

Late in the season, John McGraw tilt of next Saturday which opens the Tri-County league. The Long Beach-Santa Ana argument will be settled at Poly field.

The lineup:
SANTA ANA: POF. POMONA
McIntyre, RE. Phelps
Meisinger
Wood, DUNN, JR. Hezmalhalch
Dawson, MINTOSH RG. Burger
Linsendard, (C)C. Edinger
Anderson
Townsend, LG. Clark

Cook, Golden, Q. Cates

Williams, LUCK, BABE, RH. Maxson
LeBard, Spencer, L.H. McCormick
Williams, Lacy, F. (C) Neher

Hornsby would come mighty near making a pennant winner out of the Cincinnati Reds, a team which lost the pennant this year mainly because of a lack of offensive punch. It is doubtful that the Cards would take cash alone for

Players On Winning
World Series Team
To Receive $6,278

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Baseball players on the club which wins the world championship, figuring 26 eligible players to the team, will get $6,278.33 each and the players on the losing club will get about $4,185 each. This is considerably more than the players got last year, when the Giants got $4,470 each as the winners.

As their share of the receipts for finishing second in the pennant race, the Cincinnati Reds and the Detroit Tigers will divide $54,414.66 and the Pittsburgh Pirates and the Cleveland Indians will divide $38,278.30 for finishing in third place.

The players share only in the receipts of the first four games.

JOE AVERY ARRIVES
FOR ADAMS SCUFFLE

Joe Avery, midget, San Diego battler who meets Johnny Adams in the main event at Orana tomorrow night, arrived in Santa Ana today and worked out at the Grand Opera house gymnasium. Battling Nick, the rough-looking gentleman who tackles Barney Tooley in the special event, accompanied Avery.

Avery is a splendid little boxer and a willing mixer but in Adams he will meet the best boy his weight on the coast. Johnny never has lost a decision in Orange county and he doesn't intend to drop anything to little Avery.

Henry Gatten, Santa Ana middleweight, and Red Briggs, draw the semi-windup assignment. The rest of the card follows:

Battling Nick vs. Barney Tooley.
Smiling Parker vs. Tony Ross.
Kid Walker vs. Babe Orton.
Eddie Doolis vs. Tommy Aguirre.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—With the score tied 2 and 2, the Chicago Cubs and White Sox were to meet today in the fifth game of the city series.

Before a record-breaking crowd of 41,000, Earl Sheely, Sox first baseman knocked a home run in the ninth inning yesterday and scored Hooper ahead of him, winning the game for the Sox 5 to 3.

YANKEES NEED BUT
ONE MORE VICTORY

Hugmen Hammer Four
Giant Hurlers For 8 to 1
Win In Fifth Encounter

BY HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—For the first time in three years, John McGraw found the historically famous wall and not the Yankees at his back when he assembled his athletes for a few words today.

All the little Napoleon of the National league champions had to offer in the way of a plea for his men to get busy and keep the Yankees from winning the world series today was that old morale lifter:

"My men, you are still the champions."

Seconds tell fighters that when they are out in the corners and sometimes it fans the spark back into a flame. Maybe the Giants can be fanned back into the race by the fiery tongue of McGraw.

The skies were heavy with rain clouds this morning that lingered after a heavy downpour during the night.

The weather man, getting pesky for the first time during the series said that it would rain some more this morning.

Rain Will Help Giants

Anything that will hold off the sixth game of the series will be a help to McGraw as it will give his murdered pitching staff a chance to rest back into shape. But while the Giant pitchers are resting so are Sam Jones, Herb Pennock, and Waite Hoyt—three good ones that Miller Huggins has ready to toss in for the final punch at the champions.

Leading three games to two, with one more game between them and the championship, the Yankees now find themselves in the strategic position. They are in better shape than that. Nothing but a miracle now can save the Giants and there are no miracles on the eligible list of the champions.

In the fourth and fifth games of the series, the Giants were terribly outpitched, outplayed, and outpitched. They failed to produce a pitcher who could stop the savage attack of the American leaguers and their work against the Yankee pitchers was sad, indeed.

Giants Seem In Slump

The Giants seemed to have slumped mechanically and morally. Bad fielding, a sin which the Giants seldom fall into, had as much to do with the loss of yesterday's game as the liking that the Yanks took to the offerings of every pitcher McGraw sent in.

The big break in Sunday's game, which the Yanks took by the lopsided score of 8 to 1 came in the second inning. With two on base, Joe Dugan lined to right center field. Stengel, making a desperate running attempt for a pick up, came in fast. Young should have gone over behind Stengel to support him if he failed to stop the ball.

Instead, Young went after the ball, he both missed and were knocked out of their stride when they almost collided. They, then, had to turn and chase the ball to the fence, Dugan getting a homer.

That stroke knocked off Jack Bentley and he had to be removed from the box.

The same kind of erratic fielding pulled by "Irish" Meusel and Stengel in the first inning allowed Bob Meusel to get a triple and knock in two runs.

Yanks Hit Ball Hard

There was nothing much to explain in yesterday's game. The Yanks simply picked up their bats, walked to the plate and slapped them out.

All the thinking in the world as McGraw might have been capable of to hold up his end of the "mind vs matter" battle could not have stopped the vicious swing of those Yankee bats. Second guessers have now turned from the criticism of Miller Huggins and they are seeking reasons for the thing McGraw is doing. All the wise birds say that McGraw has wisely handled his pitching staff all the way through the series. They say now he should have started young Virgil Barnes yesterday and he would have had a good chance to get away with the game.

McGraw probably will take a desperate chance today and send Arthur Nehf to the box. If Nehf should tie the series again, the plight of the Giants would be bad, because McGraw would have to send "Mule" Watson back in the seventh and deciding game.

Miller Huggins may send Waite Hoyt or Herb Pennock in today if the game is played, but the Giants figure that he will try Sam Jones again. Pennock, through the run of the season, pitches only once in five days and Huggins may decide to rest him.

EVENING SALUTATION

There is a powerlessness of utterance in our blood that we should fight against, and struggle outward towards expression. We can educate ourselves to it, if we know and feel the necessity; we can make it a Christian duty, not only to love, but to be loving—not only to be true friends, but to show ourselves friendly.

—Harriet Beecher Stowe.

UNMASKING IN OKLAHOMA

The most hopeful word that has come out of Oklahoma lately is the statement, made by a representative of the Ku Klux Klan, that that organization is going to unmask.

"You can tell the rest of the country," he announces, "that the Klan will discard its hoods and gowns 10 days after Jack Walton is hurled back into private life. This is positive and certain."

It might be better for all concerned if such action were taken without any conditions attached to it. But conditionally or unconditionally, it would be a blessing to Oklahoma and a good omen for the rest of the country.

The great objection made to the Klan from the first has been its masked character, which rendered it anonymous and therefore irresponsible. This is a land which prides itself on personal responsibility for public or private acts. Other "secret societies" there are in plenty, but if some of the deeds of other fraternal orders have been secret, their membership, at any rate, has been open and public, and responsibility has not been difficult to place.

The mask, originally intended by the Klan as a means of strength, has proved a source of weakness. If it is granted that the Klan's purposes are good, nevertheless its secrecy has invited abuse. Irresponsible members, secure in their invisibility, have gone farther than their sober brethren would have sanctioned. Outsiders have sometimes donned Klan costumes for their own nefarious purposes. Thus the order has been condemned for things it never did. And the very fact of masked operation has always invited suspicions and fears.

If the Klan comes into the open, its purposes and acts can then be judged on their own merits, and condemned or approved like those of any other organization.

It is all the more desirable that this be done where issues raised by the Klan are such as ought to be settled at the polls. The American way is to advocate every public cause openly and frankly, with full responsibility shown on both sides, so that every voter may know who are represented by propagandists and candidates for office, and what policies they stand for.

Although it is usually a gas filling station that stands under the spreading chestnut tree today, there are still smithies enough to justify a national convention of blacksmiths.

ARLINGTONS IN EUROPE

There are still about 30,000 American soldiers buried in the European battle zone. Criticism offered by recently returned travelers has been outspoken against the unkempt appearance of some of the cemeteries in which they lie.

Officials of the war department have replied that improvement and beautification of the cemeteries have awaited the final segregation of all our soldier dead in eight chief burying grounds. However, work has already commenced and with the assembling of Congress it will progress more speedily. Present plans provide for the erection of marble stones of the Arlington type on the foreign graves and for keeping the landscaping of the cemeteries as natural as possible while beautifying and improving them.

Many citizens are glad to have these American cemeteries maintained near the scenes where our soldiers played their part in the World War. But because the graves are so far from home, there is all the more reason why they should be made lovely and kept neat. To establish our own national cemeteries abroad and then to neglect them utterly would be a disgrace to the government and an insult to patriotic citizens everywhere.

Our notion of the way to advertise on postage stamps—which Italy is about to undertake—is to print the ads on the back of the stamps.

STREET CARS FLOURISHING

The American Railway association reveals the fact that trolley cars are far from obsolete. They are not even obsolete. Last year electric railways in this country carried 15,317,000 passengers; that many fares were collected. That is more than ever before, representing a gain of over 6 per cent above the previous record.

The showing is especially surprising when one considers the tremendous increase last year in the output of automobiles.

Evidently the motor car is not going to elbow the trolley car into oblivion for some years yet, at least. The eventual outcome may be a triumph for both—street cars with gas engines for motive power, or motor busses on rails.

A religion assembly in Kentucky has just been debating the question whether the use of musical instruments in a church is moral. No editor likes to butt in on that kind of discussion, but it never seemed to us that the Devil took much interest in church organs.

THE VERTICAL MONOPOLY

A new kind of monopoly is represented in the policy of the Ford Motor company. Mr. Ford declares that it will be but a short time until everything that goes into the making of his product will be owned or controlled by his company.

Monopolies heretofore have operated horizontally, so to speak. That is, they have sought to control some single commodity like oil or meat or sugar everywhere at once. Here we have what might be termed a "vertical monopoly". Instead of trying to control all the country's automobiles, Mr. Ford tries to control all the materials entering into the manufacture of his particular type of automobile.

"By controlling every process of manufacture that goes into the ultimate product," he explains, "we will be able to make a machine at a lower price. False profits will be eliminated all along the line, and when they cease to exist, the buying public will have full value for its money.

"This is what manufacturers, not only of automobiles but in all lines, are going to be compelled to do. Business is coming to be big business, and the only way in which big business can exist is to control everything that enters into its ultimate product."

This, obviously, is a far less dangerous kind of monopoly than the old kind. There is nothing against it in the Sherman act and nothing against it in public opinion. It may be, so far as it can be applied, the policy of the future.

The New Party Project

—Pasadena Star-News.

The projected new political party is not faring so well as it might, according to all reports. The farmer element and the labor element are not agreeing, it seems. The farmers want lower freight rates. The railway brotherhoods want higher wages. These two wants do not consist. If freight rates are lowered, there is no likelihood that wages would be advanced. If wages were advanced, there is no likelihood that freight rates would be reduced. And so it is much as though an irresistible force met an immovable object—a deadlock.

Movements to form a great third party in national politics have been followed with keen interest by students of political affairs. There have been indications that a formidable political organization of new birth would be in the field next year. It may eventuate. But at present the movement is more or less vague. What may develop in the next few months will be awaited with deep interest by the public.

Meantime the two old political parties, which have weathered many storms and have seen the birth, decline and death of several more or less pretentious rival political organizations, are going forward, crystallizing sentiment as to politics and preparing for the great struggle of 1924.

More Teachers Are Needed

—Stockton Independent.

In 1917 only 47 students at the University of Wisconsin received teaching certificates, and of these only five were men. This year 223 students received certificates and this time 81 of them were men. This tendency, found at one university, probably is present in other schools as well. There is a definitely marked turning back to the teaching profession on the part of college men and women. Needless to say, it is a good tendency. Good teachers are greatly needed.

If men and women with the ability to teach well and a genuine interest in education are to be found and held in the profession, however, there will have to be more enlightened public attitude toward school teaching. Not better pay alone, but better teaching conditions, greater freedom from routine and red tape, more opportunity for individual study and research, more leisure for self-improvement and recreation, are some of the things needed. It has been the lack of these things in recent years that has turned many potential good teachers away from the schools.

A True Fish Story

—Fresno Republican.

The First Christian church of Fresno says it has a true fish story and it places such confidence in the authenticity of it that it recently printed it in a church service bulletin. The story is worth reading and is herewith printed:

A TRUE FISH STORY

A naturalist once divided an aquarium with a glass partition. He put a lusty bass in one section, and dropped half a dozen minnows in the other. The bass struck every time the minnows approached the glass partition. After three days of fruitless lunging which netted him only bruises, he ceased his efforts and subsisted entirely on food that was dropped in. Then the naturalist removed the glass partition. The minnows swam all around the bass, but he did not strike at a single one.

HE HAD BEEN THOROUGHLY SOLD ON THE IDEA THAT BUSINESS WAS BAD. There is a real here if we need it—take another shot at the glass partition. Maybe it isn't there any more.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

ARCH SUPPORTS.

How carefully you look after your eyes in these days. At the slightest sign of persistent headache or eye weariness, you hurry to the oculist because you realize the value of your eyes in your life.

And what about the feet?

Why at the first sign of an ache in the arches of the feet, a pair of foot supports are purchased at the nearest drug store.

Now there may be a time when foot arches become necessary, but that time is not at the first sign of pain or weakness. That little pain is Nature's warning that some unusual strain is being put on the arch. The sensible thing would be to heed the warning and find out the cause. Perhaps you are wearing the wrong kind of shoes, narrow with high heels.

Possibly you are putting on excess weight and as your feet do not grow any bigger, they are not strong enough to support this extra weight. Now what should be your first thought?

To try and preserve your own arches, because they mean spring, mean life to your walk and carriage. Just as soon as you get arch supports you lose a buoyancy that cannot be replaced.

Now the preservation of the arches is not difficult if you are willing to use a little thought and effort.

First, get the right kind of shoes. They may not look as "pretty" as some of the narrow styles, but they need not be ugly nor ungainly. They should be wide enough to allow the foot to be flat on the ground. The heel should be low and very large, actually larger on the part that touches the ground than above. Have a cobbler put an extra lift on the inner side of the sole and heel. This will roll the foot outward and off the arch.

As you walk try and point the toe straight ahead, Indian fashion, instead of outward.

And finally, remember the exercises mentioned in a previous article.

Walking on the toes of the feet with toes turned in, rising on the sides, and also on the heels.

These three simple exercises will arch up the foot for you, and keep it arched.

If you are overweight you know what to do. Don't get arches until you have persisted with the exercises for months.

If you still have trouble consult a foot specialist, who will make a plaster cast of your feet, and fit you with proper arch supports.

California Keeps Ideals

—Long Beach Press.

Figures showing the tremendous growth of California, even in one year, in material wealth, are of absorbing interest. The state as a whole, and its larger counties in particular—especially Los Angeles county—are astonishing the whole country by their swift and substantial growth.

But here is something to remember in connection with this phenomenal advancement: California, in increasing its riches colossally, is not losing its soul.

It is retaining its ideals and standards of life.

Its growing, thriving communities are clean, morally and physically. Due attention is given to ethics and to aesthetics. The state is not progressing in riches and retreating in morals and manners. Beauty is cultivated in the upbuilding of cities. Buildings are not permitted in haphazard fashion.

City planning is becoming more common. Zoning and regulation of building to conserve sanitation and to promote beauty and comfort are in evidence.

In a word, the astounding growth of this state is not frenzied and without regard to the refinements and niceties of life.

Worth While Verse

THE CHARM OF LIFE

Love is the secret spring of life,
From which all blessings flow;
It is the thought that teaches us
The joy of life to know;
The precious gift the angels left,
That by it we might climb
Near to the Heavenly Father's heart,
In blissful realms, sublime.

It lifts the soul up far beyond
The sordid thoughts of life,
And teaches us to live above
Life's useless care and strife,
While filling hearts with sunshine bright,
It brings such sweet content,
We know it is the greatest gift
God's angels ever sent.

Without it man is but a brute,
It is the spark divine
That lights the human soul, so it
With wondrous light may shine.
True love endures, immortal is,
And happiness will bring;
Love is the soul and charm of life,
The song the angels sing.

Today's Birthdays

Mr. Skinner, the Living Skeleton, was having a most uncomfortable time on this, his birthday. His platform in the side-show, and that of Miss Boggs, the Fat Lady, were side by side. There was a reason for that. He made Miss Boggs look even fatter than she was while she made him look all the thinner.

Mr. Skinner did not like this arrangement. The truth of the matter was this: He found the Fat Lady altogether too friendly to please him. She was forever bestowing sugary smiles upon him. She was always offering him candy, the sight of which made him positively ill. She was constantly exclaiming, even before strangers who visited the side-show, what a nice man he was.

A bashful person like the Living Skeleton found such attentions most painful. The reason why he was especially distressed on his birthday was because the Fat Lady was even more friendly than usual. She couldn't seem to keep her eyes off him. Whenever Mr. Skinner looked at her furtively, he met her sweetest smile. It made him feel cold and clammy.

Every time he passed her platform the Fat Lady reached forward and tapped him with her fan, asking him some foolish question. And once she said to him, "What beautiful eyes you have! Green."

When Johnnie Green stepped into the side-show she waved to him and asked him to bring the Living Skeleton a glass of water.

She insisted on loaning Mr. Skinner her fan. She remarked that he looked "peaked."

Mr. Skinner started violently when she said the word "peaked." A tremor passed over his bony frame. For a moment he thought the Fat Lady had called him by his first name, which was Ed.

Mr. Skinner was feeling so discouraged that evening that he came near staying away from the mess tent at supper time. He didn't want to see the Fat Lady any more than he had to. He had a wild idea of hiding under a circus wagon and making a meal of peanuts and popcorn.

But he thought better of it. He decided at last that he would wait until he was sure the Fat Lady was in the midst of her supper. Then he would slip into the mess tent and find him a seat near the door, where he could slip out if she made the slightest move toward him.

When Mr. Skinner, the Living Skeleton, stepped into the mess tent he had a great surprise. From a long table close to the door his companions of the side-show rose and began to cheer. Everybody was looking at him. At the head of the table the Fat Lady beckoned to him and pointed to the empty chair beside her.

And then she began to sing, "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow!"

ADVOCATES COMPLETION OF PAVEMENT OF WEST SEVENTEENTH AS SUBSTITUTE

Not from a selfish motive, but only in justice, I give my views. I have seen two articles on the proposed bridge across the Santa Ana river between the Seventeenth street bridge and the Chapman street bridge. The people were years in getting the Seventeenth street bridge rebuilt. It's a good bridge and we are grateful for it.

Now why not make more use of this bridge and not put an extra tax burden upon the people?

The proposed bridge would cost a great deal of money. Its length would have to be nearly a quarter of a mile, the river being wide at that point. The depth to which the pillars would have to be sunk would be great owing to the fact that there is so much quicksand there. Again, the bridge would have to be built extra high, for in case of heavy rains or a warm spell melting the snow in the mountains the on-rush of water carrying debris would cause it to become clogged.

What would happen then? The water would turn to the right or the left or both ways and the ranches would be washed out. The rancher would not be the only sufferer, as the water would rush into the town, causing great damage.

Don't you think we had better consider these points before we sign such a petition?

No doubt all are not aware that Seventeenth street is the longest and straightest road in Orange county, (but many are aware that West Seventeenth street is the poorest kept up road in all of Orange county; in fact, at times it has been in a deplorable condition.)

East Seventeenth is boulevarded to Main street, West Seventeenth to Ross. Why not finish the good work and connect with the Westminster road? Garden Grove has a boulevard which runs to West Fifth street, crossing West Seventeenth about one mile from town. Then fix up all the short roads that lead into West Seventeenth street and give all an equal chance.

Am I right? Someone else take this up. Tell your troubles to The Register, where all may see and read.

Pirate Treasure

By Berton Bralley

(Pirates were really more sneak thieves whose usual loot consisted of nothing more than grain and other food stuffs.—Sir Basil Thompson.)

Oh, Captain Kidd was a Pirate bold
Who sailed the roaring seas,
On many a trip he scuttled a ship
For the sake of a peck of peas.

With his Pirate-Horde a shop he'd board
And battle from stem to poop
For some garden stuff and some canned plum-duff
And a gallon or two of soup.

Old Blackbeard, too, with his evil crew,
All scoundrels of bloody ilk,
Would fight, perhaps, for a cask of schnapps
Or a cargo of malted milk.

They were steeped in crimes, and at various times
They battled in manner rash
For a mess of greens and some Boston beans
And a dinner of corned-beef hash.

They would fight a fleet for some deviled meat
Or some real blackberry jam,
And die for the sake of a chocolate cake
Or a slice of cold boiled ham.

So the treasure hid by Captain Kidd
Or any old pirate hold,
Would prove, no doubt, if you traced it out,
To lack any sign of gold;

And when you'd dug like a doodie bug
Led on by the pirate's plans,
You'd find alas! some figs in glass,
And a lot of sardine cans.

China's Future

Any people that make honesty the basis for their philosophy of life must be worthy.

That is what Dr. Ambrose Swasey, designer of the world's greatest telescopes and builder of some of the greatest instruments of precision known, thinks of the Chinese.

"China," he declares, "has a great future as she had a past. From my experience with the people of that country I am certain they will eventually again reach a high plane of civilization and equal the other nations of the earth."

"The hope of China lies in her young men, the technical, scientific men who have been trained in Western colleges. Science is slowly penetrating the educational system of China."

Dr. Swasey unquestionably is correct in his prediction. Despite the deplorable lack of unity, the slow yielding to modern thought, the clinging to ancient traditions, and the thousand and one other handicaps that now hold the Chinese back, it is inconceivable that a nation of 400,000,000 people, which makes honesty the basis of its philosophy of life, should not prove worthy. — San Francisco Chronicle.
